Easter Passes Offered

. . . NIX LIKELY

Berlin (UPI) — East Germany Thursday offered to provide Easter passes to enable West Berliners to cross the Communist wall, but Western officials said the offer will be rejected.

The West apparently considered the offer a maneuver because the East German attached the same conditions they set during the Christmas season last year. That agreement allowed Communist officials to enter West Berlin to process the passes.

The condition was accepted by West Berlin city officials last Christmas, but the Western allies voiced fears it could undermine the zone's legal ties to the West.

Basic Changes

During current negotiations for a permanent arrangement the city government, on the urging of the federal government and the allies, consistently has refused to renew the Christmas agreement without some basic changes. The West wants any passes to be issued at the wall itself, depriving the Communists of an excuse to send their officials into West Berlin.

West Berlin and East German negotiators failed to reach agreement in talks Thursday, but set up another meeting next week.

Officials of both sides met in East Berlin for about two hours in seeking an acceptable formula for letting West Berliners visit their relatives in the Communist Zone of the divided city.

6th To Date

It was their sixth meeting to date. A spokesman for the West Berlin city government said they will confer in West Berlin next week.

Western officials, who had not expected any progress, said the talks probably will collapse soon.

The East Germans were adamant in their demands that official Communist offices be opened in West Berlin to process passes. West Berlin negotiators apparently heeded the warnings of the Bonn government and the Western allies and insisted that any passes be handled at the anti-refugee barrier itself.

No Holiday

The spokesman said that Willy Brandt, the mayor of West Berlin who was elected chairman of the West German Social Democratic Party Sunday, will forego a two-week holiday and return to West Berlin.

City hall sources said Brandt's return indicated the pass talks are entering a decisive stage.

STARTING YOUNG

Nancy Schultz is getting an early start on the saxophone at the age of 3. But, that's not her only instrument. She's also a drummer, and will play both instruments with other members of her family Saturday at 2:15 p.m. at the Nebraska Center. The 8-member Duane Schulz family band of Lincoln will be one of the highlights of the annual "Weekend With Music" Saturday and Sunday at the Center. Dr. Louis Trzcinski, pictured with Nancy, said 300 Nebraskans will participate in the performances and lectures. Dr. Trzcinski directs the program.

PUSHING TRADE WITH COMMIES

. . . To Stop Fanatics

Washington (UPI)—British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home said Thursday Britain will continue to trade with Cuba and may grant long-term credit to Russia in the belief that "comfortable" Communists are less dangerous than hungry ones.

Splitting with the United States on the trade question, Douglas-Home told a news conference that Britain fully understands U.S. concern over shipments to Communist countries—but disagrees with it. He said his country will not discriminate in non-military trade.

The British leader said London "quite likely" will sign new trade contracts with Moscow in the next few months. He added that some of them could involve British credits of 12 to 15 years. The United States feels such credits would help pull Russia out of an economic hole.

News Meet

Douglas-Home held a news conference at the British Embassy after he and President Johnson concluded two days of talks on East-West trade and other foreign policy matters.

They issued a joint communique in which they agreed in general terms on policy toward nearly all major foreign policy problems, but which barely mentioned the big issue in dispute—trade with Cuba and other Communist countries.

Britain specifically supported the United States in its fight against Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam. But it was left for Douglas-Home, at his meeting with reporters, to point up the Anglo-American differences on East-West trade.

Little Time

According to British sources, these differences were so well known that Douglas-Home and the President actually spent little time on them, although they were discussed at more length by other British and American officials.

Douglas-Home told his news conference, and was said to have assured the President, that Britain will not sell arms to Cuba or other Communist countries, and will not grant economic aid or loans to the Castro government.

The prime minister said Britain's trade with Cuba has fallen substantially in recent years, dropping from 15 million pounds sterling (about $42 million) in 1959 to 1.9 million pounds (about $5.3 million) in 1963.

"It may be that in over the months to come there may be a tendency for that trade to rise," he said. "But the difference between 15 million pounds and 1.9 million pounds is one I am sure you will mark."

British officials said later Douglas-Home meant that the already-announced British bus deal with Cuba might cause Britain's trade figures with that country to rise.

The prime minister said Britain would not "discriminate" in trade or boycott trade with Communist countries "because of their political creeds."

He said the British trade philosophy was based on the belief that the "more comfortable" people are in Communist countries, "the less likely they are to be fanatical Communists."

The communique said Douglas-Home re-emphasized the United Kingdom's support for U.S. policy in South Viet Nam. This was a rebuttal to reports that Britain might be leaning toward French President Charles de Gaulle's call for "neutralization" of Viet Nam.

In turn, Johnson reaffirmed U.S. support for the "peaceful national independence" of the nation of Malaysia. Thus the United States backed Britain's efforts to resist Indonesian and Philippine claims and demands against the country.

To Continue

The President and the prime minister declared their intention to continue to seek peaceful settlements in the "sudden tensions in many parts of the world." Officials said this statement covered Anglo-American efforts to ease the Greek-Turkish strife in Cyprus.

The two leaders said they consider the pursuit of "peace with security," in cooperation with other free world allies, to be their "primary task and responsibility."

'Chances Pretty Good' Trial To Start In Dallas

Dallas (AP) —Chief defense counsel Melvin Belli said Thursday he thinks "the chances are pretty good" that the judge will tell lawyers to try to find a Dallas jury for Jack Ruby's murder trial.

Dist. Judge Joe B. Brown said he will rule Friday on the defense's effort to win a transfer of Ruby's trial.

"I'm sure we can't find a jury here," Belli said.

The trial of the man who killed President John F. Kennedy's accused assassin is scheduled to begin Monday unless Brown decides to move it to another Texas city.

Satisfied

Both Belli and Dist. Atty. Henry Wade said they were satisfied with the hearing, which extended through three days and into one night and slopped over into a fourth day.

"The chances are pretty good he will start picking a jury next week," Belli told newsmen after the hearing recessed. He noted, however, that "a lot of legal routes are open to us if necessary."

The silver-haired San Francisco lawyer said if a jury is chosen "we'll go through with it, but I feel a week from Friday there will be a change of venue."

Charged

Ruby, 52, is charged with the murder of Lee Harvey Oswald, the 24-year-old Communist sympathizer accused of the Nov. 22 assassination of President Kennedy.

The balding strip joint operator swept through a crowd of newsmen in the city jail Nov. 24 and shot Oswald as he was being transferred to the county jail.

The defense contends Ruby was temporarily insane at the time—that the assassination plunged him into an emotional state of depression that left him unaware of his actions.

Shamed Dallas

His attorneys sought to establish throughout the venue hearing that the double tragedy shamed Dallas and produced civic resentment against Ruby, therefore making it impossible to find an impartial jury to try the case here.

The defense summoned a number of witnesses in an attempt to show that Dallas people feel they must vindicate their city by convicting Ruby.

Wade, in an impromptu news conference Thursday, said he felt defense attorneys sought the hearing "more to get publicity for themselves and their client than on the merits of the proposition."

After A Few

He said in response to newsmen's questions about the defense decision not to call a number of prominent Dallas citizens it had subpoenaed:

"After a few of them testified contrary to their wishes they decided not to call any more."

Judge Brown is faced with three alternatives in ruling on the change-of-venue motion.

He can grant it, deny it or reserve a decision pending quizzing of prospective jurors.

Surgical Weapon Stalls Cholesterol

New Orlean (AP) — A striking, but still experimental surgical weapon shows promise of cutting down one of the suspected villains of heart disease — the blood fat, cholesterol.

But the new technique, tried for the first time only last year, is still several years away from being ready for general use, its young originator said Thursday.

So far it has lowered by an average of 40% the blood cholesterol levels in the first patients, reported Dr. Henry Buchwald of the University of Minnesota.

Twice Effective

By aiming at the digestive tract, it claims not only digested cholesterol — but cholesterol manufactured by the body itself.

For the four men and four women who have had the operation, it meant weighing the risks of surgery against the threat of a life burdened and shortened by heart disease.

For the 31-year-old surgeon, it means several more years of careful watching to see if lowered cholesterol levels continue — and if the gradual rusting and narrowing of the arteries is stemmed.

Suspected

Cholesterol is one of a number of blood fats which is suspected of lining the inside walls of blood vessels, narrowing the vital passageways and making them vulnerable to blockages.

In the eight selected patients, the operation cut cholesterol absorption in half, and it has reduced cholesterol levels from 30 to 60%.

Dr. Buchwald presented his findings to a panel of judges at the 13th annual meeting of the American College of Cardiology. His work is one of several reports being considered for a "Young Investigators" research award. A winner will be announced Saturday.

Sounds Simple

The technique sounds simple: It sets up a detour in the digestive tract — bypassing the area where cholesterol finds an easy avenue to the blood.

In this way, it stems not only the cholesterol in food eaten by the patient, but also the cholesterol formed in bile which is reabsorbed by the body in the same section of the intestine.

It means cutting off the last third of the small intestine — sometimes about three feet — and rejoining the small intestine to the large intestine.

Detoured

The section of small intestine isolated in this way is allowed to remain in the body, detoured from the route of digested food.

Bartunek Thinks Boost In Filing Fees Illegal

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Republican gubernatorial candidate Leo Bartunek of Lincoln Thursday questioned the constitutionality of the new law increasing filing fees for candidates for elective office.

The bill, LB540, set filing fees for most offices at "a sum equal to one per cent of the annual salary" of such office.

In the case of candidates for governor, the act raised their filing fee from $10 to $180, Bartunek said.

Quoting a 1905 State Supreme Court ruling, Bartunek suggested that LB540 violates the state constitution and is therefore null and void.

Fixed Arbitrarily

The court's language, according to Bartunek:

"A filing fee of one per cent of the salary is fixed arbitrarily, and without reference to the value of the services.

"Such charges make the pecuniary ability of a person to pay, or the amount he has contributed tax-wise to the public revenues, as the test for becoming a candidate."

Bartunek also quoted a 1912 North Dakota Supreme Court ruling which voided a bill establishing a fee based upon a percentage of one year's salary.

No Opinion

An attorney general's opinion of last August declined to express any opinion on the reasonableness of the fees prescribed by LB540.

The opinion was submitted by Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer and Deputy Atty. Gen. Gerald Vitamvas at the request of Secretary of State Franch Marsh.

It referred to the 1905 court case, but noted that it related to an act providing for one per cent of the salary for the term of office as distinguished from the present act's one per cent of a year's salary.

The Legislature has the authority to provide for adequate fees, the opinion stated, but there is no clear answer as to what would be reasonable in the eyes of the present courts.

A Lesson On Being Obnoxious

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a series of articles in which a Star staff member who has quit smoking tries to write lightly on the subject.)

By NANCY RAY
Star Staff Writer

Nothing—but nobody—can be as obnoxious as a reformed smoker. Even your best friends will hate you.

With charity for all, the reformed reformer goes forth pardoning his friends and foes who jeered his efforts a few days earlier. With the milk of human kindness gushing through his veins, the self-remade man starts the serious business of converting everyone to his state of grace.

After their own seizures of withdrawal are over, most ex-smokers turn evangelist with such gusto that Billy Graham, in comparison, is a cigar store Indian.

Unsquelchable

They'll rant on the demon nicotine at will, louder than a loudspeaker, more eager than a good deed-less Boy Scout, and unsquelchable as Casey Stengel.

And here are some of the more effective pitches, for smokeless conversion chorus:

"If I can do it, so can you!" is a sure-fire way to hook the attention of a smoker. "I was up to two packs a day until . . ." This is especially effective for the weaker sex (women, that is) to use on men. All men are firmly convinced they have much more moral fibre than a mere female, and if SHE can shake the habit . . . This is the best converter of the bunch.

"Now I am a slave to nothing!" trumpets the proud ex-smoker in another sure-fire recruiting method. But, let's be realistic. He is no longer a cigarette addict, BUT he is still a "slave" to his paycheck, finance company, wife or husband, children, ot her bad habits, social status and, probably, sour lemon drops. The honest (but less effective) victory cry would be: "Now I am a slave to one less thing!" If you are completely honest, use one of the other methods.

Money-Saver

"I'll save $219 a year!" is another audience-catching entree to a sermon on giving up the weed. And it has the added benefit of offering more savings to the worst addicts (i.e., $358.50 a year to a 3-pack-a-day smoker).

There is also a more personal approach which allows the ex-smoker to really hit 'em where it hurts. For instance, for the proud father showing off pictures of his brood: "Nice kids. Tell me, are you going to pass on your smoking habit to them along with your politics and religion?" Or to the guest at a ritzy dinner party: "It's certainly too bad you can't taste this filet mignon. It's exquisite. Now since I quit smoking and got my sense of taste and smell back . . ."

But perhaps the most enjoyable method for converting smokers into ex's is the exclusion system, which works automatically when a group of ex-smokers get together. Ever try to get a word in edge-wise?

Frontier Lines Will Fight Raise In Fee

Denver (AP) — Frontier Airlines has responded to a raise in its leasing fees by notifying the Lincoln, Neb., Municipal Airport Authority it plans to take the matter to court, an airlines spokesman said Thursday night.

Negotiations had broken off and "it's my understanding we practically ended up with an eviction notice today," the spokesman added.

He said a letter was written by Lewis W. Dymond, president of Frontier, to Leo Beck, Jr. chairman of the Airport Authority, telling of the tentative plan to go to court.

(Beck told The Star early Friday morning he had received no communication of any kind from Frontier. He declined further comment.)

Fees 'Excessive'

Dymond told Beck, the spokesman said, that Frontier feels its fees are excessive compared to those paid at Lincoln by United Air Lines, the other line serving Lincoln.

The spokesman said Frontier offered to double the fees it has been paying. Last year, the fees totaled slightly more than $11,000, he said.

But he added that the authority's representatives "were talking in terms of over $44,000."

"Lincoln is an important stop to us, of course," the source said, "because it is the hub of our operations in Nebraska. It is the state capital and everything radiates out from Lincoln."

He said about 20% of the line's business is in Nebraska. Frontier has 12 flights into Lincoln and 10 out. It also serves 60 other cities in 11 states.

Father Of 11 Is Accidentally Killed By Gun

The death of Arthur J. Knopp, 47, of 2000 Park, whose body was found Thursday near a truck on East A about one and one-half miles east of Walton, was ruled accidental.

Deputy Sheriff Harlan Kendle said a shotgun found under Mr. Knopp's body apparently went off when he was removing it from the cab of the truck.

Kendle said the shot, which entered Mr. Knopp's chest toward the left side, apparently killed him instantly.

Mrs. Knopp said her husband had been hunting coyotes for several months, and speculation was that he had spotted one at the time of the mishap.

Mr. Knopp was the father of 11 children, Kendle said.

Cubans Found Guilty By OAS

SUPPORT CHARGES BY VENEZUELANS

New York (UPI) — A five-nation inter-American investigating team has found Communist Cuba guilty of aggression against Venezuela on four counts, UPI learned Thursday from diplomatic sources.

Specifically, the investigators found Cuba has trained, armed, backed and financed Venezuelan guerrillas and terrorists seeking to overthrow the regime of President Romulo Betancourt.

The Venezuelan charges against Cuba were filed with the Organization of American States (OAS) last Dec. 3. The investigating team's conclusions in support of the charges are contained in a 30-page report, including several hundred pages of annexes and documents, now being prepared in Washington for release shortly.

No Recommendations

The report makes no recommendations. After member states study it, the OAS council may meet to act directly on its findings and conclusions, or summon a conference of American foreign ministers.

Under Venezuela's invocation of the 1947 Rio de Janeiro treaty of mutual assistance, the OAS could apply one or more of these sanctions against Cuba as an aggressor:

Withdrawal of ambassadors; rupture of diplomatic and-or consular relations; partial or total interruption of economic relations, or rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic or telephonic communications, or the use of armed force against Cuba.

Prior Instance

There has been only one prior instance of such sanctions. In August, 1960, acting on a Venezuelan complaint against the then dictatorial Trujillo Dominican regime, the OAS broke diplomatic relations with that government, suspended trade in arms and war material and imposed a partial economic boycott.

The Trujillo regime collapsed later.

The investigating team which probed Venezuela's charges against Cuba consisted of representatives of Argentina, Colombia, Costa Rica, the United States and Uruguay.

It made an on-the-spot investigation in Venezuela of the charges. Following its return to Washington, and on Brazilian insistence, the team cabled Cuba a summary of its findings and invited a written reply even though Cuba had been expelled from the OAS. The Cubans rejected the invitation in insulting terms.

Evidence

The evidence against Cuba on which the team based its conclusions of guilt included, among other findings:

—Documents showing Communist Cuba trained more than 480 Venezuelans in guerrilla warfare tactics in the past two years. More than 60 key members of the Venezuelan Communist Party and its affiliated revolutionary movement of the left have been trained in subversion in Cuba since 1960.

—An airport search of luggage of Venezuelan Deputy Gustavo Machados on his return to Caracas from Havana and Moscow in the spring of 1963 unearthed what was described as a huge amount of dollars in a false bottom to a trunk and documents of an "embarrassing nature" in his brief case. Machados, Venezuelan Communist Party secretary-general, apparently had counted on parliamentary immunity from search.

Tons Of Arms

—On Nov. 2, 1963, Venezuelan authorities found three tons of arms cached on the remote Paraquana Peninsula. They included 31 Belgian-made UZI submachineguns, 81 Belgian rifles, 5 U.S.-made 60mm mortars, 20 5-inch bazookas and nine 75mm recoilless rifles, plus abundant ammunition.

—On Nov. 4, 1963, Venezuelan police raided the home of Luis Eduardo Sanchez Madero, Communist Party member known to have been in Cuba in 1962 and presumed to have been trained there. They found a large number of documents showing well drawn plans to seize the capital city of Caracas. Arms specified for use in the planned takeover — not previously used by the terrorist underground — included mortars, bazookas and recoilless rifles.

—Ordnance experts, including Americans, succeeded in bringing out serial numbers and armory markings showing the arms to be property of the Cuban government. The Fabrique Nationale d'Armes de Guerre at Herstal, Belgium certified in writing to Venezuela that the serial numbers on the Belgian arms proved they had been sold to Cuba. A former Castro army officer, now in exile in Miami, said he headed the purchasing mission which bought them.

Suffering U.S. Males Can Still Whip Castro

Washington (AP) —Pity the poor males manning U.S. defenses against Castro at Guantanamo, says a British news hawk.

They will continue to put up an impregnable front against the Cuban dictator, but deep inside their psyches they will suffer severely for want of female companionship.

These views were expressed in an interview Thursday by Edwin Tetlow, correspondent for the London Daily Telegraph, who is just back from Guantanamo.

Better Posture

He was commenting on a Defense Department announcement that all dependents of all personnel will be withdrawn gradually from the naval base to "improve its garrison posture." This will be done by (1) forbidding males assigned there in the future to take their families along and (2) withdrawing during the next two years all personnel having families with them there now.

All this stems from Fidel Castro's action in cutting off the base's water, which prompted a U.S. move to supply the bastion with non-Communist H20.

For women and children now there, Tetlow said, there won't be heartbreak, because they won't be leaving until their husbands and daddies do.

Main Sorrow

"Their main sorrow," he said, "is that they will be leaving a pretty ideal community. There is a duplicate of everything in a fine U.S. town—good schools, playgrounds, houses, swimming pools, women's clubs, sewing circles."..

In addition, there is a boon not often found in the U.S.A. a baseball game is rarely interrupted by rain, and a lady does not need to put on rubbers to go to the sewing circle.

"The real pinch," said Tetlow, "will be felt by men who are drafted there in the future. Already one of the gripes among single men is that there are 10 of them for every single woman."

Forbidden

And the unattached are forbidden to stray over into Castroland in search of romance.

Though Guantanamo will gradually become strictly a grim military outpost—without any need for schools, playgrounds or sewing circles—Tetlow predicts morale won't diminish enough to give Castro the faintest chance to crack it.

"Believe me, old boy," he said, "there's enough force in the form of tanks and other weaponry. And there's never a shortage of naval might.

"The U.S. will always be able to wipe the floor with Fidel. Righto."

—MORE PAY—

Viet Nam Soldiers Get Hike

Plateau G., Viet Nam (AP) — Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh said Thursday he is boosting the pay of his enlisted men by about $4 million a year and wants them represented on his ruling junta.

Aiming to bolster military morale, the premier-strongman made the announcements on the lunar new year that is Viet Nam's most important holiday.

Icy rain dripped down Khanh's face as he spoke at this remote outpost on the jungle-covered highlands 280 miles northeast of Saigon.

20% Hike

The pay increase will mean an average monthly raise of 20% — about $2 — for privates and corporals. The increase affects about 150,000 men or three-fourths of South Viet Nam's U.S.-trained army.

Instead of a rise in the $500 million a year in aid from the United States, however, Khahn's aides said the extra money will have to come from a general economic belt tightening.

Deputy Premier Nguyen Xuan Oanh, a former instructor at Harvard University, is expected to start reorganizing South Viet Nam's economic structure soon.

Gen. Paul D. Harkins, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, various diplomats and foreign newsmen accompanied Khahn on his morale-boosting trip.

Vicious Fighting Sputters

Nicosia, Cyprus (AP) — Vicious communal fighting at Limassol sputtered into an uneasy cease-fire late Thursday while talks to end just such violence continued without announced results at the presidential palace in Nicosia.

Battles in the south coast port of Limassol killed at least 10 Turkish Cypriots and one Greek Cypriot. A total of a dozen were wounded.

It was the worst flareup since last Christmas.

On the diplomatic front, U.S. Undersecretary of State George W. Ball met twice with President Archbishop Makarios — then unexpectedly decided to remain another day for another round.

He and a British envoy, Cyril Pickard, have met Makarios four times since they presented their joint plan to land an international peacekeeping force on this Mediterranean hotspot.

The fact Ball is remaining for additional conferences is interpreted here two ways: That the Americans and British are offering new amendments to the plan which will be carried back to Ankara and Athens for approval, or that Makarios is having a hard time making up his mind.

Reds Blast Swiss In Nossenko Case

Moscow (UPI) — The Soviet Union Thursday singled out Switzerland for the brunt of its protests over the disappearance of Yuri I. Nossenko, a Russian delegate to the Geneva disarmament conference.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry Wednesday night lodged a formal protest with the Swiss Embassy in Moscow. The details of the note were not disclosed, and the Swiss were willing to confirm only that they received one.

Moscow said the protest followed the general lines of the unprecedented statement made in Geneva Wednesday by Semyon K. Tsarapkin, the chief of the Soviet delegation to the disarmament talks.

Swiss Failed

At a special news conference, Tsarapkin charged that Switzerland had failed to provide "elementary security" for conference delegates and had "displayed an obvious reluctance to provide effective assistance" to the Soviet delegation in looking for Nossenko.

The United States has announced that Nossenko defected from the Communists and asked for political asylum in the United States.

But Tsarapkin avoided any direct attacks on the United States and Thursday he said he was sure the future of the disarmament conference will not be affected by the affair.

Negotiation

He called the case "a matter of negotiation between Switzerland and the Soviet Union." The Communists have implied that Nossenko either was lured or kidnaped by the West.

(Swiss officials in Geneva have ridiculed the charges, saying no amount of security can protect a man from his own decision. There has been widespread speculation in the West that Nossenko may have had intimate knowledge of Soviet nuclear secrets.)

So far the Soviet press has made no mention of the defection. But the official news agency Tass has reported Tsarapkin's statement in its dispatches abroad.

Nazi Hangs Self To Escape Trial

Frankfurt, Germany (AP) — Dr. Werner Heyde hanged himself in prison Thursday and escaped trial on charges that he was the man who headed Adolf Hitler's program for killing 200,000 mental and physical defectives in World War II.

The suicide of the scholarly, 61-year-old professor of medicine — fourth death of a Nazi war crimes trial defendant this month — followed by one day Friedrich Tillmann's fatal fall from an eighth-floor window in Cologne in what the state prosecutor, Dr. Fritz Bauer, said also was a suicide.

Heyde and Tillmann were to have gone on trial next Tuesday at Limburg as the two top defendants accused of responsibility for the slaughter of 70,000 of the 200,000 defectives exterminated in Nazi death camps.

Heyde hanged himself with his belt from a heating pipe in his cell at Butzbach Prison. Tillmann, 60, administrative expert in ridding Hitler's touted super-race of defectives, fell from an office-building window.

Bauer, in describing Tillmann's death as a suicide, charged that a conspiracy is trying to thwart a trial at which names of more Nazi criminals might come to light.

Earlier this month, Ewald Peters, top bodyguard on Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's December visit to President Johnson's ranch in Texas, hanged himself in his cell in Bonn rather than face trial in the mass killing of Jews in Russia in World War II. Peters was Erhard's chief security officer.

Another ex-Nazi, Julius Garbler, leaped to his death from a high corridor Feb. 6 while held at Wels, Austria, awaiting trial on charges of murdering Poles as a security police officer in 1942-43.

A third defendant with Heyde and Tillmann, Dr. Gerhard Bohne, 61, fled last summer and is believed to be in Latin America. Dr. Hans Hefelmann, 58, the only other defendant, is free on bail and lives in Munich with his wife and four children.

In Munich, Hefelmann locked himself in his apartment and refused to open the door for newsmen seeking to interview him. Police said Hefelmann is in poor health but had been very cooperative, returning voluntarily from Argentina in 1955 when he was accused of the involvement in the so-called mercy killing section in Hitler's office.

Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Hastings — Adams County may have a new courthouse this spring.

Thanks to an obliging weatherman, construction of the $650,000 building is running several months ahead of schedule.

It might be ready as early as June 1.

"The mild weather has done a lot to speed the work," said County Judge Harry C. Haverly. "This has been one of our mildest winters in years."

He noted that an early opening of the spacious county improvement would be most welcome.

"We already have been forced to move many of our records to the library at Hastings College for storage," the judge said.

Some of the records date back to the late 1880s and will be preserved by the Nebraska State Historical Society.

"We simply ran out of space," he related.

A majority of the county departments were short of record space. The present courthouse has served Adams County since 1889.

Haverly reported space was so limited that it became necessary to rent quarters from the County Welfare Department.

Official recognition of the need came when the Board of Supervisors levied three-fourths of a mill in 1947 for starting a courthouse building fund.

Space worries will be something of the past when the new building is complete.

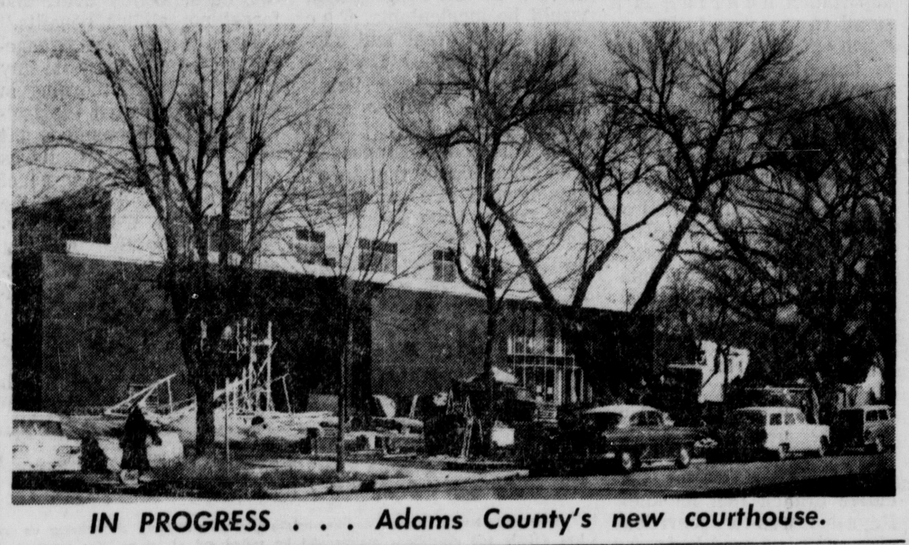

Its steel, re-enforced frame will offer some 55,000 square feet of floor space. Design is contemporary with the "modern fads" eliminated.

The new courthouse stands across the street from the old one.

Trio Sought In Robbing Of 2 Women

Omaha (AP)—Two men and a woman were being sought by Omaha police Thursday in connection with the beating and robbing of two South Omaha women.

The victims were Dora Hajek, 72, and her daughter, 47-year-old Martha.

Police said the attacks were another in a series on elderly persons on the south side which have resulted in two murders and sluggings in the last 10 months.

The pair said two men were waiting at the back door Wednesday night when they opened it to let their dog out. The men forced Dora into the house and told her to give them all the money they had.

The women said the men had guns and the younger of the two was "very mean." One of the intruders said if they reported the incident, they would be dead by Saturday.

The trio got $75 from the two women, who work in their home as seamstresses.

The other of the men was described as being in his 40s; the younger as being in his teens. The woman took no part in the beatings.

Police Cruiser Involved In 2-Car Mishap On 16th

A cruiser driven by Officer Marvin L. Morgan, 34, received about $150 damage when it was involved in a collision near 16th and S Thursday afternoon, police reported.

Police said Morgan's cruiser hit the rear of a car driven by Miss Roberta A. Layton, 18, of 1951 Sewell. Police estimated only minor damages to Miss Layton's automobile.

Miss Layton's car had stopped behind two vehicles waiting for a pedestrian to cross 16th when Morgan's car slid into the rear of the Layton car, police reported.

Both cars were going south on 16th. There were no injuries.

Summary Of Conditions

By Friday evening a trough line and Pacific cold front should extend from northeastern Wisconsin to near Columbia, Mo., and down to southwestern Oklahoma and through southern New Mexico. The eastward advance of this front should bring about an increase of clouds across Nebraska.

Any precipitation out of the front will be very widely scattered and brief. Most precipitation with it should occur in Oklahoma and southern Kansas, where more moisture is available.

A high pressure area is building into the northern and central Rockies behind the Pacific front, and by Friday evening a high cell will exist in the Utah area.

Beatlemania Here; Teens Flip For Wigs

Beatlemania has hit the Capital City.

A check of downtown department stores Thursday night revealed that Lincoln's youth were clamoring for "Beatle Wigs." One store said it had received over 100 requests for wigs since opening Thursday morning.

The Beatles are a screaming Rock' 'N' Roll foursome from Liverpool, England, currently sweeping American teen-agers off their feet.

None of the department stores which were checked had received any of the wigs, but one store said it expected a shipment to arrive next week.

Another reported that the company from which it ordered could manufacture about 20,000 Beatle wigs a day. The manufacturer had over 300,000 orders for the wigs, with about 1,000 wigs per order.

A department store in Omaha reported it had sold 20 dozen of the wigs in two days. The store has ordered "hundreds of dozens" more in anticipation of the teen-age demand.

The cost of the wigs will be around $3.

Housing Issue On Wahoo Ballot

Wahoo (AP)—The Wahoo Housing Authority has decided to put the question of low rent housing before the voters in the April 7 municipal election.

B. E. Norenberg, chairman of the authority, said the proposal will be whether the city shall co-operate with the Housing Authority and the Public Housing Administration in providing homes for low income homes and the elderly. This would involve a 40-year federal loan to be repaid by rentals.

Woman Killed On Interstate

Omaha (AP)—A Council Bluffs, Iowa, woman was fatally injured Thursday in an Interstate Highway accident six miles west of Omaha.

She was Sally Grace Ryba, 21.

The State Safety Patrol said she was eastbound and alone in her car when it crossed a frost-covered bridge. She lost control, officers said, the car hit the bridge and she was thrown out.

It was Nebraska's 32nd fatality of the year compared with 30 on the same date a year ago.

Some Respect For This Policeman

Cincinnati (AP) — Police Sgt. Lawrence McCarthy almost lost his pants here.

A thief broke into a dry cleaning shop and escaped with $300 worth of clothing, including McCarthy's trousers.

The burglar, however, apparently didn't want to steal from a cop.

McCarthy's trousers were left hanging from a fence at the side of the building.

Demos Under Attack From Rep. Curtis

Omaha (AP)—Despite its good luck in coming to power just as the economy hit the bottom of the business cycle and was beginning to turn upward, the Democratic Administration "has written a dismal catalogue of economic failure over the last three years," Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., said Thursday night.

Rep. Curtis

Rep. Curtis, a member of both the House-Senate Joint Economic Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee, made this accusation in an address at a Lincoln Day dinner in Omaha.

"The Democratic Administration was blessed with the chance to work its economic magic in an atmosphere of recovery," he said. "Yet the soft spots which blight our general economic well-being are unimproved or growing worse."

Curtis cited as examples:

—The highest unemployment rate during 1963 since World War II save for 1961 and 1958.

—A post war peak in major business failures during 1963.

—Increasing foreclosure rate by the Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing Administration.

—Declining farm income.

—Increased federal spending.

—A continuing gold drain.

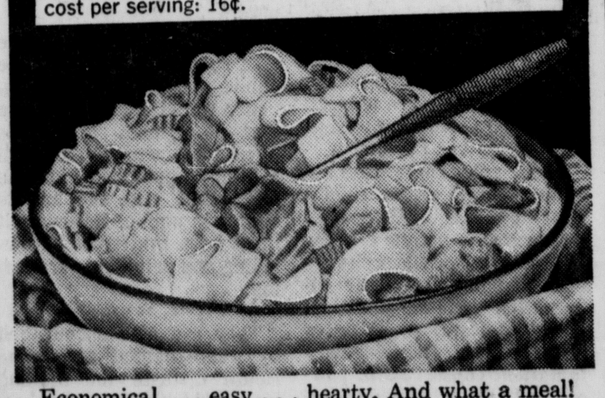

—General increases in the price level.

"What the Johnson Administration has tried to pass off as an economic policy amounts to nothing more than big government, big spending and big deficit—and now we have the big stick," he said. "The President has put labor and business on notice that he will use the full force of his office to roll back wage and price decisions of which he disapproves."

A Word To The Wise

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

This is a day when intelligent individuals of a certain group are not to be caught empty-handed. This is the male group and the time, of course, is Valentine's Day. One can take a sane and serious look at the day and calmly see that it really requires nothing at all out of the ordinary. Quite properly, you may go home this evening without any box of candy, perhaps a card or anything else for the other member of your family partnership.

Such lack of interest in the day isn't about to lead to disaster—unless. It could lead to disaster if your approach is characteristic of your general, year-long attitude. If you have the notion that there is no time of the year that requires any special recognition on your part of the other member of your family partnership, then chances are you may well be heading toward some kind of disaster. You needn't be a conformist by sending candy, flowers or something else on birthdays, Valentine's Day, etc., but you would be wise to do it at certain times throughout the year.

Disaster Looms Ahead

It isn't exactly bending over backwards in consideration to recognize birthdays and anniversaries as times of special meaning and worthy of some extra treatment. If you refuse to go beyond these more meaningful days in your expressions of concern for others, then you would be wise to show this concern at random during the year.

So, you can pass up Valentine's Day if you like and not expect to be hanged for it but don't get to the point where indifference is the standard by which you live. A little indifference goes a long way and when you pass it out in generous doses, that is the measure of return you soon find coming your way.

This day, of course, is of most importance to the children who may or may not know much of what the day is but who surely feel the excitement of it. The passing out and receiving of cards is the highlight of the day, accompanied in the lower grades of school by some kind of socializing beyond that to which time is given in the normal day. Many times the cards that are to be passed out are pretty well worn before they are distributed. They have been fingered and examined for a number of days at home and compared in one way and another until their corners are rounded and their surfaces smudged. There is no carelessness in the distribution of these cards. Most people would find it pretty hard to see much of any difference in the cards but such is not the case with the youngsters.

Most of us find it a little unbearable even to consider the Beatles and their rather awful haircuts and worse music (?) but the teenagers of the nation have no difficulty communicating with the foursome. We thought we had heard almost everything until we were tuned in by a teenager the other night to a local radio station that proceeded to play, at one time, four different recordings by the Beatles. The experience is almost enough to drive you back to smoking or send you raving into the cold of the night for some escape. Once you have heard this, you are sure it is an experience you never want to have again but the teenagers only cry for more.

As the teenagers can see something in the Beatles that most of us can't find, so the youngsters can see things in their Valentine cards that we can't see. The cards have changed a great deal in their physical characteristics in recent years but not in their general content. All the cards used to be in the form of a heavy, folded, smooth-surfaced paper.

The front of the card had some kind of picture on it and the border was often a gingerbread of some kind. The little verse was on the inside. Today, the cards are a single piece of what would be best described as cardboard and are cut out into a design of the central picture that appears on them.

The theme of the cards today is about what it has always been, either vaguely sentimental or more or less insulting. It doesn't take long for the youngsters to see some one of their classmates as being just right to receive a certain card. What is considered, for reasons that never become clear, the worst card of all is reversed for the classmate who seems to have the least on the ball in the many diverse matters that constitute school. This covers a wide range of things far beyond the learning process that supposedly takes place within the classroom.

Card Recipient

The best card of all, generally the most sentimental of all, is reserved for the classmate who is held in greatest regard. This card is always awarded on the basis of friendship, not any measure of merit or achievement. The whole experience is a tremendously exciting one because it has to do with our relationships with others—diverting us from an inward focus that can become most boring.

"No, Thanks, I Quit Cigarettes . . . Too Much Of A Health Hazard!"

DREW PEARSON

Profumo Scandal Character In U.S.

WASHINGTON — One of London's famous ladies of the evening who got headlines in the Christine Keeler case has mysteriously entered the United States and is now living in the nation's capital. She hasn't attracted as much attention as the Beatles and she hasn't been invited yet to the British embassy. But she's here.

She is Margaret "Ronnie" Ricardo, 22, a convicted prostitute who testified in the trial of Dr. Stephen Ward, the society osteopath who later committed suicide, that she had lied when in a preliminary hearing she told police that she had given some of her earnings to Ward. She said at the final trial that she had lied because of police pressure.

Ronnie came to the United States merely by turning up at the American embassy in London and asking for a visa. She used her real name, Margaret Leslie, and U.S. consular officials apparently did not know who she was.

Her purpose in coming to the United States apparently was to marry an American Negro whom she had known while he was on military duty in England.

The immigration service picked up Ronnie's trail in Washington and has set a hearing on Feb. 27 for her deportation. Meanwhile Mario T. Noto, nervous associate commissioner of immigration, has been fluttering around like a wet hen, hoping the public won't find out about the matter. Among other things, he wants to hold the deportation hearing in a small room so as to bar as much of the press and public as possible. Or, better still, he hopes Ronnie will decide to leave before the hearings.

Sen. Everett Jordan, a stalwart citizen of Saxapahaw, N.C., and sometime naive member of the U.S. Senate, has told the press that he didn't know the dubious background of Don Reynolds because the executive branch of government had not given him the revealing file on this key witness against President Johnson in the Bobby Baker case.

Simultaneously, the senator told officials of the executive branch that he knew Reynolds was a scurrilous character but was badgered by the Republicans into putting him on the stand. Sen. John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, a Republican who tells the truth, told me that the committee had known of Reynold's unsavory background, which would tend to prove that the second, private statement by Chairman Jordan is correct.

Regardless of who was telling the truth, however, Senate debate has now disclosed that Sen. Jordan's committee has spent $40,000 probing the Baker case and still has $85,000 on tap. This is a fair amount of money for a congressional probe, certainly enough for Sen. Jordan to do some routine, relatively inexpensive investigating.

BIBLE WORDS THAT GUIDE ME

Bless the Lord, O my soul: and all that is within me, bless his holy name. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits.

Psalms 103:1-2 King James Version

By REV. GARDNER C. TAYLOR
Pastor, Concord Baptist Church of Christ

DR. TAYLOR

It was on a chill Saturday evening in the fall of 1954 that this passage came to have an indescribably rich meaning for me. Our church had burned to the ground two years before. The needs of the congregation and the community demanded the erection of a building that was slated to cost more than $1,200,000.00. And ours was a community composed primarily of people of low income. But we had no choice in the light of the needs of the teeming Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn with its 300,000 people but to make the attempt.

Funds ran out and we were face to face with the bleak prospect of having to halt work on the half-finished structure. Obviously, the damage of such a step to the morale of the congregation would be incalculable. The dream of a great and adequate building for Bedford-Stuyvesant was under imminent threat of sudden and bitter collapse.

In this circumstance, I walked dejectedly that Saturday evening into my makeshift study in the old, dilapidated building that we were using temporarily. Among the letters was one which bore no return address. Finally, I opened it.

To my utter amazement, it contained a cashier's check for $1,000 and a little white sheet of paper with the words "Psalm 103:1-2" on it. Nothing else! I turned to the 103rd Psalm and read the words "Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless his holy name. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits."

Those words spoke strangely and compellingly to my spirit. The next morning in worship I reported the incident and the anonymous gift of $1,000. The reaction was electric, a strange surge of power passed through the congregation. We were "airborne" from that moment and went forward to complete the new Concord buildings.

This gift accompanied by the same Biblical reference was to be repeated each year until the debt was completely retired, but that first gift illumined by the passage, was God's gift of new life and new faith to a tired, almost defeated people.

Gardner C. Taylor, pastor since 1948 of the more-than-11,500-member Concord Baptist Church of Christ in Brooklyn, is noted for his eloquence and relevancy as a preacher and as a platform speaker. He also is an organizer and a man of great creative talents with an amazing supply of energy that propels him into the public light as a respected spokesman against school, housing, and job segregation.

Dr. Taylor was the first Negro, the first Baptist, and the youngest person to be elected President of The Protestant Council of the City of New York, a cooperative body of 31 denominations.

His influence as a preacher has brought him many honors, including an Oberlin alumni citation. His prophetic messages have been delivered throughout the nation from pulpits, at college convocations, at civic rallies, and from the rostrums of such assembles as the World Baptist Alliance, which he addressed in 1947 in Copenhagen and in 1955 in London's Westminster Hall.

No Reason To Worry

The weather bureau has called attention to Nebraska's winter drought.

This is the fourth month experiencing no better than 45 per cent of normal rainfall. And spring is just around the corner.

It has been a winter of nagging comment. The tree ring watchers are talking about cyclic drought and observing that a new dry period is due any time now.

Reports coming in from neighboring states say it is dry there, too.

Feed grain farmers show a troubled mind. Many who in the past were satisfied with a 20 per cent acreage take out are thinking about 40 per cent.

They say, "This might well be a dry year and we might be better off with payments for acreage reduction." That sort of thinking hints of short crops or even crop failure.

Well, so it is.

One can't argue with the weather bureau's rainfall records. They are a statement of fact.

One can't argue too much with the tree ring experts. They may be missing their drought date by five or ten years. But Nebraska historically figures two short crops in every ten. And modern history proves dry cycles.

But all this is anxiety. A few timely rains make the difference between abundance and short fare.

The point is that the anxiety is unnecessary in Nebraska. There is no region in the state where reasonable water conservation could not permanently end the drought threat. It is simply the matter of building the installations.

Safety On Interstate

Based on national averages, it is estimated that total traffic fatalities in Nebraska were reduced by 30 as a result of the Interstate Highway. The existence of this modern stretch of road, even to the limited degree which it is available, has saved the lives of 30 people who would have been killed had they been traveling standard highways.

Anyone who has been on any of the Nebraska Interstate within the past year can say that were it not for the improved highway, they might not be alive today. This is a matter that is frequently overlooked by the public when it considers the benefits of such a program as the Interstate. The Interstate is far more than a mere matter of convenience to the driving public, although those are not features to be sneered at.

The national study of Interstate traffic and fatalities showed control of access on the highway to be the most important single factor contributing to the road's good safety record. The Federal Bureau of Roads notes, however, that such other design features as wide lanes, broad medians, easy curvature and grades, and long sight distances also are important to the system's safety.

One needs only to contemplate a few of the above items to realize the significance of the new highway. Consider the narrow lanes, sharp turns, blind hills and other characteristics of older highways that often left you narrowly averting disaster. Think of the near misses you have had on old highways as a result of design features that have been vastly improved on the Interstate. When we think in this way of the Interstate benefits, we come to realize that the highway represents an expense well worth what it has been.

Woman Of Integrity

After a dispassionate examination of the testimony given by Mrs. Lee Oswald to the Warren commission on the Kennedy tragedy, one comes to the inevitable conclusion that she is a women of considerable integrity and one deserving of something much better than the chain of deep misfortunes which have befallen her.

She struggled with questions couched in what was to her an almost alien tongue, but as she grasped their meaning she seemed to reply with utmost candor. It is understandable that as a loyal wife she did not wish to believe her husband guilty of the crime alleged to him. But it did not deter her from stating that on the basis of the evidence she was forced to conclude he was guilty.

When she was asked why she did not warn authorities of his apparent degeneration of social attitude, she replied, "He was my husband."

Remindful that in American justice a wife is not required to testify against her husband, we can conclude that young Mrs. Oswald was unusually cooperative, and a useful witness in terms of the public welfare. We can say that if all witnesses behaved with equal regard for the quest of truth, eschewing the half truth, or splitting the meaning of a phrase, our practice of justice would be greatly improved.

Mrs. Oswald is a Russian girl who wishes to remain in this land of ours despite the barriers of language, the expected stigma which burdens her because of her association and despite what must be to her so much strangeness. She wishes to become an American and to rear her children as Americans. Her behaviour certainly speaks in her favor.

Certainly the American people will do no wrong in meeting her half way.

Dirksen A Key In Civil Rights Issue

WASHINGTON—When President Johnson dreams of the Senate struggle over civil rights he has a nightmare vision of his old mentor, Democratic Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia, quietly opening the door to the capitol hideaway of Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Republican minority leader.

In just such conferences with Republican leaders, Russell has long been able to detach from the civil rights cause enough Republican votes against cloture to block legislation or enforce a compromise on key parts of it.

Those votes come from the 15 to 20 small states, chiefly west of the Mississippi, where Negro voters are few and people tend to resist social change. For their cooperation with the South on racial matters, such states get southern votes for reclamation, conservation, power and other projects important to them.

There seems at the moment nothing to impede Senator Dirksen from reaching his own decision about the morality and validity of the old strategy in the presidential year of 1964. Republicans have no clear favorite for the nomination with the right of appeal to Dirksen's loyalty, personal or party. The minority is divided on the civil rights issue though it would almost surely follow if Dirksen leads strongly.

☆ ☆ ☆

If the feared coalition becomes a fact the President next must decide whether he can and should influence his old protege, Democratic Leader Sen. Mike Mansfield, to break the filibuster. That would involve wearing days and nights for senior senators, a step the humane Mansfield will be reluctant to take.

Mansfield is up this fall for re-election but his home state, Montana, falls within the area where civil rights pressures are light. Montana is also believed to be Goldwater territory these days indicating a conservative mood Mansfield cannot ignore.

Democrats favoring the civil rights bill including the public accommodations sections, would like to believe that the affluent society has altered the situation Russell skillfully exploited in the past. That case is hard to debate in public. However, it must be a matter of buttonholing and privately persuading.

☆ ☆ ☆

They are also encouraged by what seemed a genuine House distaste for making civil rights a do-or-die battle. Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., of the House Judiciary Committee and its ranking Republican, Rep. William F. McCulloch of Ohio, had their troubles initially in the committee but the bill's passage through the House seemed amazingly smooth.

The President is making his own plans for the Senate debate. He hopes for great consideration from his fellow-Southerners but he has to let that emotion work by itself. His difficulty may be one of restraint. Democratic senators let him know promptly in early 1961 that he was no longer one of them after Mansfield incautiously proposed that the then vice president attend party caucuses.

Hackberry Gnats

Lincoln, Neb.

Does anyone like to have pesky gnats crawling over his skin and clothes inside the house as well as outdoors? Does he like to see them on or around his food at the table or massed by hundreds on his screen doors? Is anyone raising gnats on his property in the city of Lincoln?

Many property owners are raising gnats by the thousands and do not even know it. The property owner who has one or more hackberry trees on his lot or parking is raising hackberry gnats, unless his tree or trees receive the proper kind of spraying at the time when the young insects—tiny caterpillars—can be destroyed before they are settled in nests called galls on the back of the hackberry leaves. The insect changes to the adult stage, or gnat, while in the gall on the leaf. One leaf may have a dozen or more galls on it. Hence, it is no wonder the air in some parts of Lincoln is filled with the gnats when they have emerged from the galls.

Much money and time are spent each year in the effort to kill mosquitoes, flies and other insects. How much has been spent to destroy the hackberry gnats? Shouldn't each property owner who has one or more hackberry trees make certain those trees are not producing the gnats that are such pests in this city? Let's work for a gnat-free community as well as endeavoring to destroy some larger insects.

Good Job Of Selling

Miami Beach, Fla.

I think the most notable success of Gov. Frank Morrison has been selling Nebraska to the people of Nebraska. Many Nebraskans have developed a furtive fear that perhaps we really were second-rate and that we must not expect too much from the future. In every speech Governor Morrison makes, he seems to be aiming at these ideas. He seems to be making good progress.

The field the governor may constitutionally cultivate may be limited, but he has developed a good crop that is affecting all other departments of Nebraska. As his pet bill for educational television matures, we shall see that his instinct for school management was sound and true.

The governor rated this measure one of the most important ever passed by a Nebraska Legislature. Time will show that the governor was both wise and conservative in his estimate.

We might go on and mention his diplomatic skill in preventing war from breaking out between our state and South Dakota and Iowa.

Like President Johnson, Governor Morrison appears to be so busy with his objectives that he doesn't have time to "play politics" in the usual sense of the word. When he is invited to address a meeting of the opposite party, his success seems rather notable for all elements and parties within the state.

Two Cities

The similitude of Dallas and Lincoln is not withheld to the two "l's" in the name (Life Magazine, Jan. 31). The city founded by a log cabin builder by the banks of a murky stream is present in both backgrounds. So is the political maneuvering of an entrenched oligarchy.

While here it perhaps is not called the "Citizens' Council," life memberships are bestowed and perhaps it goes by another name. At all events, it is inflexible. It generates, not good will, but the opposite — low wages alongside opulence.

Life could well send its reporter northward.

First Things First

Lincoln, Neb.

I have the utmost confidence that the orders of the federal court regarding voter registration in the South will be carried out with the assistance of the U.S. Justice Department and the U.S. marshals and without the unasked assistance of the Lincoln and Nebraska clergy.

I believe the clergy should clean up their own communities first before embarking on a clean-up campaign in the South.

Evidently these ministers do not have confidence in our federal courts or the U.S. Justice Department.

Will Power

Lincoln, Neb.

I think Nancy Ray is stretching things about smoking, or just doesn't want to admit it's one of the filthiest habits anyone can have. It smells up clothes, hands, breath. If someone keeps busy and interested in work of importance, he won't have to change to candy, drinking or anything else. Any kind of over-indulgence is sinful.

Our school PTA, churches and other places are empty because they can't keep away from smoking long enough for important things. No wonder children take no interest in school.

Doctors don't help smokers any unless they are Christian doctors who have never used tobacco themselves, and there are very few of them. Will power is what people need, not something to suck on continually.

In all my 40 years I've never taken to the habit and I'm thankful. It is not necessary and no one can tell me it is.

Newsman Budig To Succeed Otto As Governor's Assistant

Budig

Otto

Gov. Frank Morrison Thursday announced the appointment of Lincoln newspaperman Gene A. Budig as his administrative assistant to succeed Norman A. Otto who is resigning to accept a federal appointment as director of the Small Business Administration in Nebraska.

Otto, a Kearney resident and former state senator, joined Morrison's staff at the beginning of the governor's first term in 1961.

He will take over his new post at Omaha March 2, and Budig will assume his new duties on that same date.

NU Graduate

A former McCook resident, Budig, 25, is a graduate of the University of Nebraska, has earned his master's degree in English and is working on a doctorate degree.

He was a general news and sports reporter for the McCook Daily Gazette from 1956 to 1958, and joined The Lincoln Star editorial staff in 1959 as a feature and general news assignment reporter. In 1962 he was assigned as an outstate news reporter for both The Star and The Lincoln Journal.

He is married to the former Gretchen Van Bloom of Lincoln, and is a second lieutenant and state public information officer for the Nebraska Air National Guard.

His starting salary as Morrison's assistant will be $8,500 Otto began at $9,000 and later had his salary raised to $11,000.

Otto's new position as SBA director carries a starting salary of $11,700 with an increase to $13,600 in the first year.

Morrison praised Otto as having served "with distinction and dedication to the State of Nebraska."

The governor said he regretted losing Otto, but noted his new post will also give him an "opportunity for great public service," and the chance to "afford leadership in our (Nebraska's) industrial development program."

Morrison also said that State Insurance Director Frank Barrett will assist with some of the administrative duties during the changeover, but emphasized Barrett will remain in his post as insurance director.

Kelley To Remain

John C. Kelley, who has served as a special assistant to the governor since 1961, will remain in that post assigned to handling special projects for Morrison.

Commenting upon his appointment, Budig said that Gov. Morrison "recognizes the role that Nebraska's young men should play in building a better state government.

"He realizes that their voices should add, not destroy. He realizes that if these young people are to stay in the state, they must be given an opportunity to help carve the paths they will be asked to follow."

NSIA Official Claims Governor Broke Promise

S. H. Brauer Jr., an official of the Nebraska School Improvement Association (NSIA), said Thursday that on Dec. 17 Gov. Morrison assured leaders of the NSIA his regional conferences on education "will be open to everyone."

However, according to Brauer, some conferences have required advance reservations with as high as $3 registration fees.

"Such maneuvering to control attendance and thereby the conclusions on the part of the regional conference chairman is proof positive the meetings have not been public and 'open to everyone,'" Brauer said in a prepared statement.

He added that "it is obvious that Gov. Morrison's original purpose for these conferences 'for the free exchange of ideas' has not and cannot be achieved under these conditions."

Brauer's statement said: "Our members have been under restraint and have been observing and abiding by the dictates of the regional conferences planning committees. They awaited invitations which were never received. I do not believe they can any longer be expected to observe and participate under such circumstances.

"A periodic check with other rurally-oriented organizations disclosed that they too were passed over when invitations were issued."

Earlier Thursday, Morrison charged Brauer with circulating "false, untrue and fraudulent information."

At a news conference, the governor said Brauer has no basis supporting his complaint that the governor's education conferences were "rigged."

Brauer said the governor's charge "leads me to believe his trust and confidence in his consultants have been misplaced and betrayed. I am sure that when the governor has had the time and opportunity to assess and evaluate the facts and evidence, he will realize he has been blitzed as have we."

Brauer's statement continued: "I am amazed that the governor would resort to the use of innuendo and intrigue to cast reflection on this organization's fiscal integrity by his suggestion that additional laws are needed to pry into our financial activities.

"A law very similar to the one Gov. Morrison says he will ask the Legislature for in 1965 was enacted in 1963. The present law requires an annual audit (which we were doing before the law was passed) prepared under the rules and regulations adopted by the state auditor and which must be filed with the secretary of state."

Brauer said Morrison has "my personal assurance that we will cooperate with him in every way to gain whatever legislation he feels necessary to further protect and assure our members of financial responsibility."

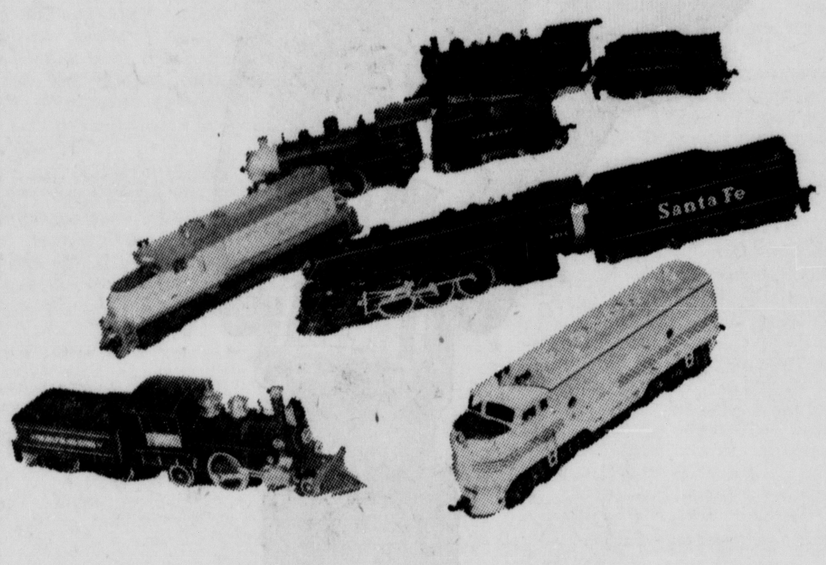

Brauer added: "I think the governor, however, would be better advised and provide the state greater service by concerning himself with correcting and straightening out the big mess that has been made of his conferences on education."

At his news conference, Morrison said "never at any time" has he or his staff interfered with the free operation of the conferences.

Financing Like City's Proposed For Creek Area

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The H & S Development Corporation proposed Thursday that bonded financing for a proposed residential subdivision in the Stevens Creek watershed would be patterned after the city's if necessary zoning were approved.

H & S officials during an informal meeting with City Council members also urged that the city favorably reconsider residential zoning next Monday for the 400-acre tract near 84th and Holdrege.

The requested zoning for proposed Meadow Lane Park Addition, containing some 300 building lots and a shopping center, was indefinitely postponed last December by the council pending further study.

H & S formed by Strauss Bros. and Hoppe Lumber Co. interests, has proposed Sanitary Improvement District (SID) financing and administration of utilities and improvements for the residential development.

Fear and Suspicion

Attorney Lloyd Marti, representing H & S, said that the "only obstacle to our plan appears to be the councils' fear and suspicion of residential development by SID districts."

"We'll capitulate on this point," he told the council. "We'll finance all improvements just like the city does. Special assessment bonds will be used on streets, sewers, water and storm sewers like the city. General obligation bonds will be used only on those improvements on which the city uses them."

Dale Tintsman of First Nebraska Securities said between $750,000 and $1,000,000 bond indebtedness is estimated for streets and utilities, including a package sewage treatment plant.

He said the SID's bonded indebtedness to assessed value would have the same ratio as the city's after three years with the anticipated residential growth.

During the embryo period, the city assumes no risk and can withhold annexation until financial soundness is assured, he said.

Contents Withheld

Discussion indicated several city departmental reports had been furnished to the council by Mayor Dean Petersen, but contents were not publicly disclosed.

Apparently referring to report or council objections, Marti said the "free tax ride" by an independent subdivision on the city's edge, was only partially valid because the city "could annex us any time."

He also noted perhaps $3.5 million urban valuation outside the city, including The Knolls and the "country estates on South 70th on which the city has deferred annexation."

As to shifting of the city's population center eastward and away from the downtown core area, Marti said this has been going on for a number of years and the H & S development wouldn't materially hasten the trend.

Outlets Shifted

He noted a number of downtown merchants, including Miller & Paine and Ben Simon's, have developed merchandising outlets in the Gateway Shopping Center.

Marti suggested the SID financing and development plan should overcome the city's major objections with the assumption that the council doesn't want to stop eastward growth of the city for the next 20 years.

Council members did not discuss the H & S financing plan, but indicated the matter might be put on the table for discussion for the regular council meeting Monday.

Optimistic Hallam Plant Report Issued

The builders of the nuclear power plant at Hallam made an optimistic report Thursday on its early operation.

The plant has shown excellent ability with the load and to provide base power, said officials of Atomics International.

The plant follows load automatically, they explained. The reactor output goes from 30 to 65% of rated capacity meeting the changing demand for power.

By the end of January, the plant had generated 107,363,000 kilowatt hours of electricity and had been operating at an average of about 34% of capacity, Atomics International said.

Steam from the nuclear plant is fed into the turbine-generator of Consumers Public Power District at Hallam, and the electricity distributed into the state's power grid system.

Atomics International built the sodium graphite reactor for the Atomic Energy Commission. Consumers took over operation Feb. 6.

Cost Of Housing Prisoners May Go To $3 Daily

Omaha (AP) — The cost of housing Omaha city prisoners in the county jail will jump from $1.95 to $3 a day if the county board approves a resolution to be submitted soon.

Since 1959 the city has been paying the county $1.90 a day for each city prisoner housed in the county jail. The figure is based on 30 cents per meal and $1 a day for lodging. There also is a one-time committal feel fee of 50 cents.

Under a new state law allowing counties to charge actual cost for housing and feeding city prisoners, county budget director Adrian Jaworski said the cost can be raised. The resolution which Board Chairman Jack Cavanaugh plans to introduce would raise the meal cost to 35 cents and the lodging cost to $1.95.

Soviets Urge Cut In Arms Spending

Geneva (AP) — The Soviet Union said Thursday a universal agreement to reduce military spending is the most urgent initial step toward world disarmament.

Soviet Negotiator Semyon K. Tsarapkin told the 17-nation disarmament conference all nations of the world, big and small, should agree to reduce their military expenditures by 10 to 15%. He said the conference must give this issue top priority.

Tsarapkin's proposal followed a similar suggestion by Brazilian delegate Josue de Castro, who called on the big powers to make simultaneous and equal cuts in their military budgets and devote 20% to helping underdeveloped countries of the world.

The Soviet delegate agreed with the idea of a cut in military spending but said all nations would have to join in. He sharply disagreed with De Castro's proposal to set up a subcommittee for detailed negotiations. A subcommittee merely would be an obstacle to agreement, he said.

Tsarapkin told the meeting the world's total military spending exceeds $120 billion a year. He said steps must be taken quickly to ease this burden.

An American spokesman said the U.S. delegation will study Tsarapkin's suggestion carefully. He noted one unacceptable condition: The Soviet delegate demanded that the Western powers give "agreement in principle" to the idea, and that no detailed discussions precede such an agreement. The West rejects this procedure as putting the cart before the horse.

The U.S. spokesman emphasized that there must be a clear definition of what constitutes military spending. He recalled that recent cuts in Soviet defense expenditures were accompanied by a large increase in Russia's scientific research budget.

Sir Alec's Defense Program Asks Record High Support

London (AP) — Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home's government Thursday night announced a record peacetime defense program for 1964-65 and immediately sparked a new battle with Harold Wilson's Socialists.

The requested increase of a half a billion dollars would raise Britain's defense budget to slightly more than 10% of the $52.4 billion sought by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara for the next fiscal year.

A white paper on defense policy affirmed the resolve of the Tories to maintain Britain's independent nuclear strike power because:

"If there were no power in Europe capable of inflicting unacceptable damage on a potential enemy he might be tempted — if not now then at some time in the future—to attack in the mistaken belief that the United States would not act unless America herself were attacked."

But Britain now has all the nuclear warheads needed for "the foreseeable future," the document said. Accordingly production of military plutonium is being ended.

George Brown, deputy leader of the Socialists, assailed the government's program.

Insurance Man Tells Story

. . . HOFFA'S LAWYERS OFFER OBJECTIONS

Chattanooga, Tenn. (AP) — With the defense objecting to each word, a Nashville insurance man Thursday told of reporting a bribe offer he said he received as a juror in James Hoffa's 1962 conspiracy trial.

The Teamsters president's Detroit lawyer, James E. Haggerty, called the testimoney of insurance agent James C. Tippens, "compounded hearsay." Harry Berke, his Chattanooga lawyer, called it "rankest hearsay."

They asked him just one question on cross-examination: "Do you know Mr. Hoffa?" The reply: "No."

When Tippens finished, the government said it now can finish its case "in 20 minutes" Friday. The trial began Jan. 20.

Limited

Tippens, who was excused from the Nashville jury after reporting the bribe offer, was allowed to testify only within narrow limits imposed by U.S. Dist. Judge Frank Wilson.

The judge ruled Tippens could testify only to back up earlier testimony from chief government witness Edward G. Partin, a Baton Rouge, La., Teamsters official.

Hoffa and five other men are on trial before Judge Wilson on charges of trying to influence the jury which heard the Nashville conspiracy case. The Nashville jury deadlocked and a mistrial resulted.

Partin linked Hoffa and four of the others on trial with alleged efforts to rig the jury. But in 6½ days of testimony and cross-examination, Partin did not once mention the name of Lawrence W. Medlin, a Nashville sandwich shop operator accused of offering the $10,000 bribe to Tippens if he would vote for Hoffa's acquittal.

Medlin and the others all were indicted on the jury-tampering charges in May, but Medlin is not on trial here. His case still is pending in Nashville.

'No Foundation'

Because Partin did not testify against Medlin, the defense contended the government had not laid a foundation for any of Tippens' story.

"If we're not allowed to put on Mr. Tippens," said Chief Prosecutor James Neal, "we'll have to move for dismissal" of that part of the indictment which charges Medlin with offering Tippens the bribe — and accuses Hoffa of helping him.

After thinking about it at lunch, the judge decided Tippens could testify he had talked with Medlin — but not reveal what was said. He also said Tippens could tell of the report to Judge Miller.

Tippens testified he was seated in the Nashville jury box tentatively on the day Hoffa's trial opened — Oct. 22, 1963.

'Offered A . . .'

The next day, he said, he talked with Medlin. The following morning, he said, he told Judge Miller "I felt I should be disqualified as a juror due to . . . conditions which existed — namely that I had been offered a . . ."

Defense objections interrupted him.

The judge sustained several more objections, until Special Prosecutor John J. Hooker asked, "did you tell the judge you had been offered a sum of money?"

Judge Strikes Down Notasulga Fire Ordinance

Opelika, Ala. (AP) —A federal judge ruled Thursday that a fire safety ordinance at Notasulga was enacted and used as a devious means of blocking desegregation of the high school there, and enjoined city officials from any further interference.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr., came after a hearing which brought from Mayor James Rea himself an offer to seek repeal of the fire-safety ordinance along with another ordinance which the judge said also was designed to keep six Negroes out of the Macon County High School.

Johnson issued a sweeping order prohibiting Rea or any other Notasulga city official from any action designed to prevent the six Negroes from attending the school is compliance with an earlier order from the same judge.

The Negroes were expected to return to the school Friday. They have not made an appearance since they were turned back Feb. 5 by the mayor.

Invoking the fire ordinance then, Rea said the Negro pupils could not enter the school because additional pupils would dangerously overcrowd the school.

The other ordinance Johnson referred to and thus far unused, is one which empowers the Notasulga mayor to close the school or any other public building where violence is threatened.

Admission

The hearing also brought an admission from Rea that the fire safety ordinance was enacted after the six Negroes were ordered transferred to Notasulga from the recently closed Tuskegee High School.

The court held that the passage and use of the fire law was a subterfuge which had "no rational basis."

After Rea testified, the Justice Department rested its case and the defense quickly followed suit without calling any witnesses.

Insisted

All the white pupils are boycotting the Notasulga school and the mayor said earlier that the ordinance no longer applied and the Negroes were free to attend. But the government insisted on obtaining an order from Johnson to prevent further interference.

C. A. Pruitt, Macon County school superintendent, testified that he had no reason to believe that Notasulga High School was overcrowded, despite a limit on enrollment imposed by Rea.

The Notasulga situation stems from earlier efforts to integrate the white school at Tuskegee. White students boycotted Tuskegee after the federal court ordered 12 Negroes admitted. The state board of education closed the Tuskegee school, contending it was costing $450 a month per pupil to operate it for 12 students.

Johnson then ordered the 12 Negroes transferred to white schools at Notasulga and Shorter.

Six Negroes were admitted to Shorter but white students are boycotting that school.

YOUNG SINATRA CHALLENGES DEFENSE

Los Angeles (UPI)—Frank Sinatra Jr. Thursday challenged defense charges his kidnap was a hoax in a point-by-point description of 54 fear-filled hours he was held captive, "playing it cool" to save his life.

Sinatra, almost certain to undergo intensive cross-examination Friday by defense attorneys who claim his kidnap was a "publicity hoax," provided two dramatic hours of testimony Thursday afternoon at trial of three men accused of kidnaping him.

Poised, speaking slowly but precisely, young Sinatra disclosed for the first time publicly he heard the three defendants say he was abducted as part of a plan "for higher-ups in organized crime."

The three accused kidnapers as well as a crowded courtroom listened intently during the dialogue of prosecutor and asserted kidnap victim.

Sinatra, questioned by prosecutor Thomas Sheridan, started at the beginning—the time of the kidnap Dec. 8—and ended with his release on Dec. 11.

Some major points included:

—He was abducted at gunpoint Dec. 8 from his Lake Tahoe motel room by two men, one of whom he pointed out as Barry Worthington Keenan. He said he feared for his life and that of a friend, John Foss, because of Keenan's statement "in a profound, straight tone, that if there was any trouble, there was going to be shooting."

—He said he was told to "play it cool" to avoid getting hurt, and said at no time did he escape.

—The witness said during most of the period he was kidnaped, he was blindfolded and could identify only Keenan.

—One of the defendants told him he was "involved in a major kidnap," purpose of which was to obtain $240,000 —"money from your father."

—He suggested how to pass through a roadblock to escape detection. In addition to recommending he should not wear a signet ring with the initials "FS" to escape detection.

He said he did this to avoid harm, in view of threats.

Link Sex Ring With Cosa Nostra

Mineola, N.Y. (UPI)—Dist. Atty. William Cahn disclosed Thursday he has a secret witness to link Long Island's suburban housewife sex for sale ring to the Cosa Nostra national crime syndicate.

Cahn said the witness is being kept in hiding for his own safety while the information he has given to authorities is being checked out.

"There is a possibility of this (call girl) ring having a connecton with some organized crime and this possibility looms larger with the evidence and testimony of a witness who shall remain nameless," Cahn said.

Mystery

Meanwhile, the mystery around the death of bar owner Edmund Nugent deepened. His body was found Tuesday inside his flaming automobile.

Cahn said there still was no determination whether Nugent, who had admitted being a "steerer" for the call girl ring, was murdered or whether his death was an accident.

He said a report from an autopsy showed that he was not drunk, but that he apparently died from smoke inhalation. The inside of the car smouldered for some time before bursting into flames fed by some flammable liquid.

First Name

Nugent was on a first name basis with a number of gangland chieftains including racketeers Johnny Dio and Frank Costello.

Cahn also announced that Nugent's silent partner in the bar, Joseph Napolitano, 53, had been arrested and was being questioned about Nugent's death and the call girl ring.

Napolitano denied being a partner in the bar. He said he only worked there as day manager and his occupation actually was a bricklayer.

The ring, where housewives became prostitutes to help with the family income and even had husbands babysit for them in some instances, was smashed by Cahn's undercover agents after a 22-month investigation.

Nebraska Clergymen In Dixie Cite Harassment, No Violence

Lincoln Star Special

Hattiesburg, Miss. — Nebraska ministers participating in a voter registration campaign here report no violence directed at them but say "continual harassment" of student volunteers is "quite apparent."

A car belonging to the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, spearhead of the registration drive, had syrup mixed with its gasoline when it was returned from police custody, the Rev. Dean Hay of College View Presbyterian Church in Lincoln said.

The car was taken into custody, the Rev. Mr. Hay said, after the arrest of Luther Houze, a student worker, for speeding. The Lincoln clergyman added that Houze had just pulled onto the street and the ministers who witnessed the arrest "could not believe that he was exceeding the 35-mile per hour limit."

Encouragement

The Nebraska ministers have been in the picket lines along with Negro citizens "as an encouragement to the Negro community," the Rev. Mr. Hay said.

He said teams of ministers have also made contacts with local white ministers, civic officials and citizens, and teams of pastors and students have been canvassing the Negro community for registrants.

"Numerous instances of threats against jobs, welfare support for handicapped members of the family and dependent children, and fear of physical retaliation have been reported," the Rev. Mr. Hay said.

Whites Guarded

"Fear is deep enough to hinder the obtaining of affidavits needed for courts of law," the minister said, adding that "the white community seems equally concerned about retaliation and speaks guardedly."

The Lincolnite said a Negro marcher was pulled from the picket line Wednesday by police who asked identification. That night police checked the man's car at his home, and they did so again Thursday morning, the Rev. Mr. Hay reported.

The man "has been assured that his picketing will not jeopardize his Social Security benefits or his pension," the Rev. Mr. Hay said, "and is going back on the line."

"Men and women and children will continue to march under the American flag and between the magnolias on the courthouse square," the Rev. Mr. Hay said. "Some of them have noticed that the statue of the Confederate soldier standing by the flag symbolically has a black eye."

Leadership Study Planned Via TV, Community Unit

A program entitled "Dynamics of Leadership," a study of how groups operate and why they bog down, has been planned by the group work section of the Lincoln Community Council for Council staff and lay leaders and other interested persons.

Five films on leadership dynamics will be presented on KUON-TV in April and early May, which will be viewed by groups of eight to ten persons in each of several Lincoln homes. These groups will participate in "before and after" discussions.

Potential participants in the project met Thursday for a preview of one of the films.

Sens. McGinley, Kjar File For Re-Election To Unicam

Sen Don McGinley of Ogallala Thursday filed for re-election to a fourth term in the Legislature.

His action ended speculation that he might be a candidate for lieutenant governor on the Democratic ticket.

McGinley was elected to the 1955, 1957 and 1963 sessions of the Legislature from the 39th District which has been reorganized under the reapportionment act to the 44th District comprised of Keith, Grant, Garden, Deuel, Arthur and Morrill counties.

He served as chairman of the Judiciary Committee in the 1957 and 1963 sessions.

A former U.S. congressman and attorney, McGinley is engaged in livestock farming, cattle-feeding operations and the part-time practice of law.

Another incumbent legislator, Sen. Albert A. Kjar of Lexington, also filed Thursday for a third term from the new 39th District comprised of Dawson, Gosper and Phelps counties.

Kjar McGinley

A former mayor of Lexington and past president of both the Nebraska Reclamation Association and Nebraska State Irrigation Association, Kjar has long been acitve in public power matters in the state. He served as chairman of the Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee in the 1963 session.

Wells Files

Also filing for the 39th District post Thursday was Albert E. Wells of Cozad.

Other legislative filings included: Alice G. White and Dale L. Hooker, both of Omaha, became candidates for the 8th District post, and Edward Charles Mertz of Omaha filed for the 9th District.

Fred Peterson of Columbus, Columbus municipal judge and younger brother of former Gov. Val Peterson, filed as a Republican candidate for the Railway Commission from the new Third District.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff filed for delegate to the GOP national convention from the Third Congressional District.

2 Time-Sales Cases Will Be Dropped If New Bills Upheld

Attorney Clarence Davis of Lincoln said Thursday that two appeals to the U.S. Supreme Court of time-sales cases will be dropped if the Nebraska Supreme Court upholds the validity of "remedial" bills passed by the 1963 Legislature in special session last fall.

Davis has asked the state Supreme Court for a copy of a transcript in the Elder vs. Doerr case, which originated in Douglas District Court. He said this will be appealed.

It has already been announced that the Mackrill vs. GMAC case, which started in the Scotts Bluff District Court, will be taken to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Both cases involve the 1959 Nebraska installment sales act which the state Supreme Court has ruled invalid.

The Supreme Court is scheduled to hear oral arguments March 5 on three "remedial" bills.

The Hall County District Court has ruled the three bills are constitutional. They are LB16, LB17 and LB19.

The bills are designed to protect merchants against losses they face from contracts written under the invalid installment sales laws of 1959 and 1963.

Davis said there would be no need to appeal the two installment sales cases to the U.S. Supreme Court if the "remedial" bills are upheld. He noted the appeals in the two installment sales cases are based on the severity of the usury penalties invoked by the state Supreme Court.

The "remedial" bills ease these penalties.

C.J. Oltejenbruns Named To Head Radio Club Here

The Lincoln Amateur Radio Club has elected Colin J. Oltejenbruns as its president for 1964. He succeeds Don Short.

Other officers named were Don Kidney, vice president; Richard Short, treasurer, and Virgil Falloon, secretary.

Club members agreed to furnish mobile communications for the Easter Seal drive on March 16.

Mayor To Leave On 1-Week Trip To San Diego

Mayor Dean Petersen will leave the city Friday for a one-week vacation trip to San Diego.

The mayor said he and Mrs. Petersen would visit his sister, Helen and her husband, who are observing their 50th wedding anniversary.

Council Vice Chairman John Comstock will be acting mayor during Mayor Petersen's absence from the city.

Bridge By B. Jay Becker

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
1 ♦	Dble.	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 ♣	Pass	?

What would you now bid with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠Q7652 ♥K8 ♦962 ♣K53
2. ♠J853 ♥962 ♦AQ3 ♣Q74
3. ♠A7643 ♥J6 ♦9 ♣Q8542
4. ♠A942 ♥Q653 ♦752 ♣J3

1. Three clubs. Presumably, North considered his hand too strong to overcall the diamond bid directly with two clubs and went out of his way to double before bidding two clubs.

Strong bids of this type must be respected. We have 8 points in high cards and might have had only 2 or 3. The raise in clubs simply tells partner that there is a chance for game in view of his bidding. It does not mean that we have a big hand —we haven't — but it does mean that we have a better hand than we might have had for the forced response of one spade. If North bids three spades over three clubs, we carry on gladly to four.

2. Two notrump. We bid again here also, but this time, with two diamond stoppers and a notrump type of hand, we choose two notrump. The weakness in hearts and spades is discounted, since North is bound to have at least some strength in both these suits. The point is that we have values unknown to partner, and the best way of representing them is to make the most encouraging bid towards game that we can.

3. Four clubs. The chances of making game with this hand are substantially better than with either of the first two hands. We have less in high cards, it is true, but the much more attractive distribution and excellent trump fit easily justify a jump raise. A simple raise to three clubs would vastly understate the game prospects; in fact, a raise to five clubs would come closer to hitting the mark than three clubs would.

Partner cannot read us for having an enormous hand in this sequence, since we responded originally with only one spade, which could have been passed by North. With a really good hand we would have responded to the double with two spades.

4. Two hearts. Game is by no means impossible, despite the ragged nature of the hand. The double usually implies support for at least two of the three suits available aside from the suit doubled, and there is an excellent chance in this sequence that North has four hearts. If he has and raises two hearts to three, we go on to four.

⅛ teaspoon pepper
Paprika

Remove skin from cucumber. Slice in half lengthwise; scoop out and discard seeds. Dice cucumber and stir into sour cream along with chopped parsley, salt and pepper. Spoon over fish or pass separately. Just before serving, sprinkle with paprika. Makes 1½ cups sauce.

FLOUNDER FILLETS WITH ALMOND STUFFING

1½ lbs. flounder fillets, fresh or frozen
½ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup chopped onion
4 cups soft bread crumbs
¼ cup blanched almonds, slivered
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons softened butter or margarine
Paprika

Let fillets thaw on refrigerator shelf or at room temperature. Melt the ½ cup butter or margarine in saucepan. Add onion and cook until tender. Add bread crumbs, slivered almonds, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Place half the fillets close together in a greased baking dish. Cover with stuffing and top with remaining fillets. Spread fish with softened butter and sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 minutes, or until fish flakes easily with a fork. Serve in baking dish or transfer to warm platter. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

HALIBUT TEMESCAL

1 pint coffee cream
½ cup fine sherry
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon freshly ground pepper
Pinch of marjoram
2 pounds fillets (or steaks) of northern halibut
¼ pound cooked or canned shrimp or lobster meat
Fine dry bread crumbs

Put cream, sherry, and seasoning in a large cast-iron frying pan and bring to a boil. (Judge seasoning quantities by taste.) Carefully slide in halibut, cut in pieces for serving, and poach for 3 minutes. Gently remove halibut to a shallow ovenproof dish; pour the cream over it. On each serving, place some shrimp or lobster meat and over all sprinkle bread crumbs. Slide under the broiler until the cream has brown bubbles on top. Serves 6.

An Omelet That's New

This delicious new omelet makes such an intriguing breakfast, you may want to repeat it sometime for lunch. It's a great answer to the "what-can-I-serve-that's-different" problem for lazy Sunday morning brunches.

You'll particularly enjoy the color and flavor contrast of the rich, golden egg-and-cheese combination topped by spicy red canned tomato sauce with mushrooms — a new canned cooking ingredient. And a light sprinkle of chopped chives adds an identity all their own.

Serve with hot toast and grapefruit . . . with perhaps some meaty little link sausages on the side.

CHEESE OMELET WITH MUSHROOM SAUCE

(Servings—3 to 4)

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
8 eggs
1 (8-ounce) can tomato sauce with mushrooms
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon minced onion or chives
Salt to taste

Heat butter in skillet. With beater, beat eggs with 2 tablespoons tomato sauce with mushrooms and salt. Stir in cheese. Pour into skillet. Cook slowly; as mixture sets at edges, gently lift with fork to allow liquid to run to bottom. Continue cooking until done. Fold in half for serving.

While omelet is cooking, heat remaining tomato sauce with mushrooms, with onion or chives. Serve as sauce over omelet.

A Lenten Recipe That Is Superb

During Lent, the housewife who must plan meatless meals is faced with the supreme test.

She must provide appetizing, nutritious meals, and above all, there must be a wide variety of main courses.

In addition to the above qualifications, the recipes must be easy to prepare and to serve.

Here is a Lenten recipe which fulfills all these requirements. Named Heavenly Halibut, it is really very "down-to-earth", since it is simple to make, interesting to serve, and quite taste-tempting.

It also has a touch of difference. The secret of this is a tangy lemony sauce, which is spread over the fish just before the final browning. The sauce also may be served on the side.

To underscore the heavenly theme, clouds of white duchess potatoes adorn the platter. To make a real halo, you might pipe the potatoes around the platter, circling the fish.

HEAVENLY HALIBUT

½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 tablespoons bottled lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped chives or green onions
2 pounds halibut steaks (salmon, whitefish may also be used)
Salt and pepper
¼ cup bottled lemon juice
¼ cup butter

Combine mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons ReaLemon bottled lemon juice and chives; set aside. Place fish on shallow baking pan; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Sprinkle with ¼ cup bottled lemon juice and dot with butter. Bake at 450 for 10 to 12 minutes. Remove fish to heatproof platter or pan; spread with mayonnaise mixture. Using pastry bag with large star tip, pipe hot Duchess Potatoes around fish at intervals. If desired, sprinkle potatoes with ½ cup shredded Cheddar cheese. Place 2 to 3 inches from heat in broiler and cook until potatoes are slightly browned. Garnish plank with peas and parsley. Yield: 6 servings.

Duchess Potatoes: Blend 3 cups hot mashed potatoes with 1 tablespoon butter and 1 egg yolk.

The children are off to school dressed in their best and clutching their box of Valentines which soon will be distributed to their special friends. Homemakers and mothers are looking forward to a leisure dinner followed by an evening at the movie or a party with friends and neighbors.

Even though today is Valentine's Day, suburban residents seem to be busy with a variety of activities which include, bridge games, birthdays and guests.

A bridge hostess at her Meadow Lane home this coming Thursday will be Mrs. John Reta.

Her guests for the evening of cards and dessert will be Mrs. Kenneth Derman, Mrs. Richard Klaas, Mrs. H. L. Graham, Mrs. Arthur Taylor, Mrs. Robert Harrison, Mrs. Mariam Packett, and Mrs. Esther Tracy.

Weekend travelers in the Meadow Lane area were Mrs. Francis Kucera and her children, Conald, Gerard and Terry.

They were the guests of Mrs. Kucera's sister, Mrs. David Dejuancesky in Valparaiso from Friday until Sunday.

This Sunday will be a very special day for Gerard Kucera for he will be celebrating his seventh birthday with several school and neighbor friends and his brothers, Terry and Conald.

Their guests for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. John Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harrington, and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Kitrell.

EASTBOROUGH

For those disgruntled husbands who find themselves babysitting on weekend evenings while their wives play bridge, Eastborough wives have found a solution to the problem—they now invite the husbands.

The Spale family will be returning to their Eastborough home on Sunday.

Dear Abby

Maybe You're Lucky

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow with two grown children. For almost two years I went with a widower. We got along well and seemed made for each other. He asked me to marry him and I said yes. Then all of a sudden, just before holidays, he said he needed more time to think things over. He said he wanted the approval of his two older sisters, and he also wanted to talk it over with his deceased wife at her graveside in another town. I haven't heard from him since. Aside from the hurt and humiliation I have suffered, I can't help wondering what happened at his wife's grave. Or do you think he was just trying to find an escape because he changed his mind about marrying me? Can you offer an explanation to ease my torment?

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: His sisters probably turned thumbs down. What the graveside consultation turned up only the mystic widower knows. Who knows—perhaps you are the lucky ones.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

When you have been in Hawaii a week and turned the color of coconut husk, you are permitted to mourn for the good old days.

"You should have seen it before all the tourists came."

That is your story line. As you soak up sun on the beach at Waikiki. And look with mournful eyes at the new high rise apartment buildings at the foot of Diamond Head.

If you cannot remember when it was not overrun with tourists, then you should remember when it got a different class of tourists.

(If you cannot remember either, you need another mai tai and a week more of suntan.)

Ah, me, for the deep tan life. Golden papaya juice with a wedge of lemon on ice in the Waikiki morning.

Did you know there are boy papaya trees and girl papaya trees? True.

The papaya is a tropical melon. It has orange fruit and a lot of built-in things that are good for you. Papsin for one thing.

After awhile, for reasons nobody knows, the girl papayas get a deep voice and the boy papayas get giggly. Pretty soon they make a complete switch—the boy papaya trees have become girl papaya trees. And the girls have become boys.

It is one of the awe-inspiring things of nature. Remember this when you drink your juice.

☆ ☆ ☆

One thing I think shouldn't have happened. They chased the lei sellers' wagons off Waikiki.

The lei sellers used to sit in open wagons, making up the fragrant leis, right on the boulevard. They were colorful and smelled good.

There was talk that they might chase them off the avenue.

One year I came over and they were gone.

☆ ☆ ☆

They sell a good many plastic leis these days. They are well-made. Look like the real thing—until you get within six feet.

They don't wilt or get soiled.

And they have no fragrance at all, at all.

☆ ☆ ☆

There is some opposition from the the Women's Clubs to the apparently unrestricted building of skyscraper hotels which, eventually, will cut off all Waikiki.

There is something magic about the figure $100. The new $100 thrift class jet fare—(4½ hours and no frill meal service)—is simply packing Waikiki. And the hotels are rising to meet the demand.

Still, I think there must be a time when they will have built all the Waikiki out of Waikiki — as California's beaches are disappearing behind the high-fenced beach houses.

☆ ☆ ☆

"I wanna go back to my little grass shack . . ." Every man to his own taste and let's not stand in the way of progress.

The other day I was holed up in my personal foxhole at Hanalei Bay on the lovely island of Kauai. The crescent of white beach is backed by misty mountains—five waterfalls run like silver down to the valley of taro patch and sugar cane.

Over to our island flew a San Francisco criminal attorney—Harry Wainwright. In case he got lonesome, he flew in a night club operator, a Tahitian dancer and Turkey, the beach boy chief at the Hawaiian village.

☆ ☆ ☆

Wainwright took a look at the quiet beach—(two swimmers)—and the bar (one lone swinger). He said nervously: "Pretty quiet, isn't it?"

"I said: "They have some ukulele playing at night."

The ukulele player who was standing by said: "No. Tonight's Sunday and we have the village choir."

Wainwright flew back to Waikiki the next day. "I dig that place," he said. So it is quite possible I am wrong. And these are the good old days at Waikiki.

Lincoln Sends Five Into Omaha Semis

. . . MIDWEST GOLDEN GLOVES

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Omaha — Lincoln will send five boxers into the semifinal round of the Midwest Golden Gloves Tourney here Friday night.

Three Capital City punchers earned their way to the semis with Thursday night victories while two others, bantamweight Eddie Phillips and featherweight Henry Bornemeier, drew byes Thursday night.

Two Lincolnites were eliminated in Thursday's first-round action at the Civic Auditorium. Jim Blake, and 18-year old slugger, lost a decision to defending national heavyweight champion, Harley Cooper in their 175-pound bout. Cooper dropped Blake with a left hook in the first round but the former Northeast student battled toe to toe with one of the nation's outstanding amateur fighters.

Cooper told observers after the fight that Blake was one of the tougher foes he had encountered.

Decision Disputed

Dino Phillips was the other Lincoln boxer eliminated when he lost a disputed decision to Omaha's Hal Mitchell in the middleweight class.

Lincoln favorite Colin Moon advanced with a TKO victory over Ron Guthrie of McCook in 1:45 of the third round. Moon threw only one right-hand punch in the first two rounds but had blood spurting from Gutherie's nose from the beginning.

The Midland student from Nottingham England peppered the McCook fighter with a steady stream of left jabs that sent blood running from Gutherie's nose. Referee Gene Buzzell, his shirt speckled with blood, stopped the fight just as some of the 2,939 spectators were beginning to turn their head from the sight of Gutherie's face.

Lincoln flyweight champion Lonnie Crosby punched his way into the semifinal round with a third round rally that earned him the decision over Omaha's Joe Kress. Crosby had more trouble with his shoes than he did with the 112 pound Omahan.

The 16-year old Lincolnite slipped to the canvas four times in the first round but some between-round work on the soles of his shoes put him on stable footing. The bout appeared to be even going into the final round when Crosby scored repeatedly with combinations.

Lightweight Bob Gropp joins his teammates in tonight's semifinals with a decision over South Dakota's Ken Ireland.

Each fighter winning tonight in the semifinals must fight later in the evening for the championship.

Norfolk leads the team scoring for the out-state trophy with five points going into tonight's matches. Grand Island has four points, Lincoln three and South Dakota one. McCook has been shut out and Omaha is not eligible for the trophy. Norfolk also leads the out-state entries with six fighters still in the tourney while Lincoln trails with five, Grand Island with four and South Dakota with two.

Go Slow On Tickets

Nebraska's win over Oklahoma State Monday night put the Husker cagers in a strong bidding position for a first division finish in the Big Eight race.

And another upset over Colorado at the friendly NU Coliseum Saturday night would push coach Joe Cipriano's squad into a third-place tie with the Buffs.

But before you rush to the post office to mail your check for tickets to the NCAA tourney, it might be wise to check the remaining schedule. You don't have to study it for very long to come up with the conclusion that the toughest part is yet to come for Nebraska.

The Huskers certainly have earned the backing of Nebraska fans for their efforts thus far and regardless of what happens the rest of the way, they have surpassed anyone's expectations.

NU's pre-season cage fortunes were rated about on a par with Cassius Clay's chances of winning the heavyweight title from Sonny Liston.

Two factors have boosted the Huskers above what anyone thought they could do. The No. 1 factor is that the Scarlet and Cream cagers have been playing better basketball than at any time in their previous NU career.

And a factor that can't be overlooked is that the Big Eight is not up to par this year. This fact is likely to become very evident when the conference representative enters NCAA Tournament competition.

K-State Has Inside Track

Kansas State, a team that had to go overtime to down the Huskers in Lincoln, has the inside track on the Big Eight crown.

The Wildcats must be rated as favorites to come out of the three-way tie on top because of the remaining schedule. Coach Tex Winter's defending co-champions meet Oklahoma State at Manhattan and play only second-division teams in their remaining road games.

Colorado's schedule is almost as favorable if the Buffs can get by Nebraska Saturday night since the Huskers are the only first division team left for Colorado to play on the road. The Buffs play Oklahoma State at Boulder.

The Cowboys face the toughest fight since they must meet both Kansas State and Colorado as visitors.

Battle For First Division

But while these three are battling for the top three spots, Nebraska faces a rocky schedule in a bid to hang onto their newly-achieved first division status.

Cipriano must send his cagers against the three leaders in road tilts—an unenviable assignment in today's basketall wars where the visiting team is not supposed to win.

Nebraska fans might do well to savor the early victories because the trail leads uphill the rest of the way.

Friday Night TV Riles Colleges, High Schools

ABC Announces Plans For Five NFL Games

. . . PREP FEDERATION ISSUES PROTEST

New York (AP) — The American Broadcasting Co. announced Thursday that it definitely is going ahead with plans to televise five Friday night National Football League games despite protests from colleges and high schools.

The colleges and high schools insist it is an infringement on their traditional Friday night domain and violates a 1961 federal statute dealing with anti-trust legislation in sports.

The ABC, in confirming an earlier report on the projected five games, said there is no violation because the programming deals are being made with the individual clubs and not with the league itself.

Ford to Sponsor

The ABC Ford Motor Co. would sponsor the Friday night pro games. The particular games, or clubs involved, were not named. It is understood one of the teams will be Cleveland.

Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League, said:

"This is an academic question. The National Football League has not made up its 1964 schedule, and will not do so for six weeks. The league has no contract with the ABC.

"The law of 1961 states that the National Football League cannot make a package deal with a single network to televise games on Friday night. Saturday afternoon or Saturday night.

Specification

"Also, there is a specification that no games can be televised within 75 miles of a college game. If the deal is made between ABC and the member clubs individually, the 75-mile rule will be rigidly observed.

The ABC said that television agreements with individual clubs always have been valid and added:

"The proposed broadcasts would be a great public service, affording opportunity to enjoy professional football in prime evening time."

The proposed plan drew immediate blasts from both the colleges and high schools.

Disturbed

Asa Bushnell, commissioner of the Eastern College Athletic Conference and director of the college TV program, said he was "disturbed by the report."

"This is a matter for inquiry and investigation. It is a problem for the lawyers," he added.

He said the plan violated the spirit, if not the wording of the 1961 law.

A similar protest came from the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associatons, with a membership of more than 12.000.

Cliff Fagan, federation executive secretary, said he will send a letter of complaint to Rozelle as his group's first step in "protecting the interests" of member schools.

"This telecasting on Friday nights will have a more harmful effect on the high school program than on any other phase of amateur football," Fagan said.

Many colleges, particularly in the South, play games on Friday nights. Also, this is the prime time for the 12,360 high schools belonging to the National Federation of High Schools. Around 85 per cent of the high school games are played Friday nights.

Bushnell said that if he and his college television committee do not get satisfactory explanations from the NFL and ABC, a formal protest would be made. He didn't say he would go all the way to the courts, but there seemed such an inference.

Jim Corbett, athletic director of Louisiana State University and former chairman of the NCAA television committee, said if the announcement of the five Friday night games is true, "I feel such action will violate the spirit of legislation passed by Congress in 1960."

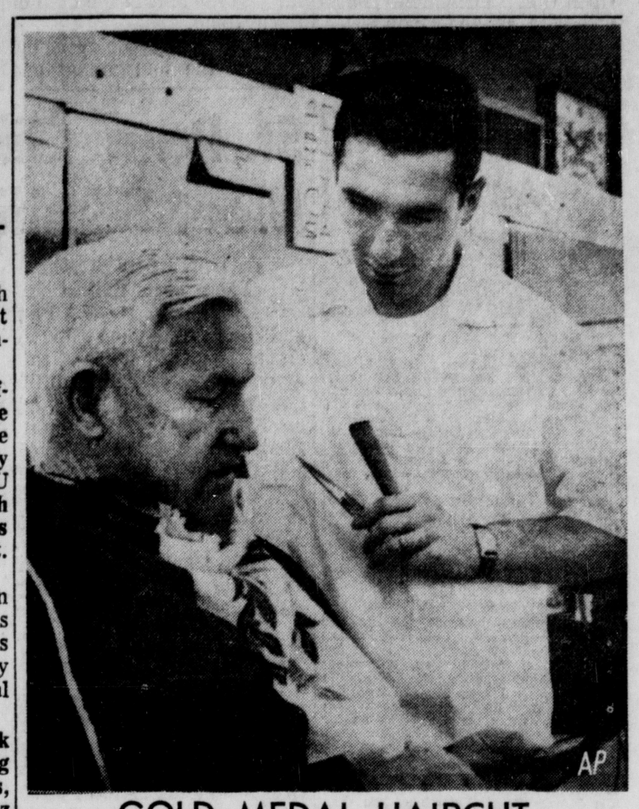

"Such programming will affect seriously and jeopardize the vast number of college games played on Friday night," Corbett added. LSU is one of the colleges which plays a number of games each season on Friday night.

Alarm

Meanwhile, alarm arose in some television and sports quarters that football, in its push for television money might destroy its gate appeal through over-exposure.

The armchair quarterback already has the game running out of the big picture tubes, like the Westerns and quiz shows of a few years back.

The colleges have regular games on Saturday afternoons throughout the season, and often leading up to the middle of December, exclusive of post-season bowl games.

Nebraska Cage Races Quickly Become Routs

. . . HASTINGS, MIDLAND PULL AWAY

By DON SUMMERSIDE
Star Sports Writer

In just a week's time, Nebraska's state college races have developed into one-team affairs.

Most surprising was the shake-up in the Tri-State Conference. Figured to be a dogfight down to the season finales, the loop's champion may already be decided.

Only Midland and Northwestern of the seven Tri-State entries escaped losses in last weekend's competition and the Warriors from Fremont are now firmly established as the team to beat.

A pair of victories over Dana and Yankton pushed Midland's conference record to 6-1 and leaves only Westmar and Yankton with hopes of catching up. One of the two will be eliminated when Westmar visits Yankton Saturday.

Concordia suffered the most last week and dropped to a 5-4 Tri-State mark after upsets by Northwestern and Dana.

Hastings' split at Chadron strengthened the Broncs' first-place hold in the Nebraska College Conference.

Peru, Chadron and Wayne retain mathematical shots at the title. Chadron plays twice at Peru this weekend, however, and a split would probably erase both clubs.

Scottsbluff has repeated as the state junior college champ. McCook's upset of Norfolk clinched the title for the Cougars who then knocked off both Norfolk and Fairbury for good measure.

—RECORDS FALL IN NEW YORK MEET—

O'Hara Sets World Record With Indoor Mile Of 3:56.6

New York (UPI) — Sandy-haired Tom O'Hara of Loyola of Chicago smashed the world indoor mile record to smithereens Thursday night with a 3:56.6 clocking in the New York A.C. Track Meet.

O'Hara passed the three-quarter mile mark in 3:01.6 in the Baxter Mile before a near-capacity crowd of about 15,000 — and then stormed over the final quarter-mile in a stupendous 55 seconds flat.

The slender young Loyola star thus erased the world mark of 3:58.6 set in the same meet last year by Jim Beatty of Los Angeles, a race in which young O'Hara finished second.

This time Beatty, out with an injured foot, was confined to shooting off the gun that started the race. O'Hara took it from there to establish himself as one of America's brightest hopes for the Olympic games at Tokyo in October.

O'Hara's triumph capped a spree of record-breaking that also saw Bob Hayes, the "world's fastest human" equal the world indoor record of 6.0 seconds for 60 yards for the third time in his fabulous sprint career.

John Uelses, history's first 16-foot vaulter, set a meet and Garden record by pole vaulting 16 feet, 1¼ inches and Wendell Mottley, Yale University's flash from Trinidad, set another with 48.3 seconds in the 440-yard dash.

But O'Hara, only 21, stole the show with his record race —a target he had been aiming at but had personally figured to reach on March 6 at Chicago.

O'Hara ran last for the first quarter-mile in a five-man field as balding Johnny Kopil of the New York A.C. led in 59.5 seconds.

John Camien of Kansas State Teachers led at the half-mile in 2:01.4. O'Hara had moved up to second by then and he rushed into the lead with four of the 11 laps still to be run.

After that the contest was just between young Tom and the clock as he opened a lead that eventually was about 50 yards at the finish, with Camien second and Francesco Bianchi of Italy a more remote third.

—THIRD STRAIGHT YEAR—

Wesleyan Awarded NCAA Cage Berth

For the third straight year, Nebraska Wesleyan University will be competing in the National Collegiate Athletic Association College Division basketball playoffs.

Woody Greeno, Plainsmen athletic director, received the bid Thursday from Richard P. Koenig, chairman of the NCAA selection committee and athletic director at Valparaiso (Ind.) University. Wesleyan was one of the first four schools contacted with the other invitations going to Evansville (Ind.) College, Kentucky Wesleyan and Youngstown University.

Coach Irv Peterson's Plainsmen will again likely be bracketed in the Midwest Regional, one of the eight tournaments that determine the finalists for the national meet in Evansville, March 11-13. Regional competition is slated for March 6 and 7, but no midwest site has been announced.

Wesleyan hosted the Midwest tourney in 1962 and went on to a fourth-place finish in the national tourney. Last year, the regional meet was held in Brookings, S. D., where the Plainsmen were a 77-75 victim of the eventual national champion, South Dakota State.

Wesleyan will probably be paired with State College of Iowa and two at-large teams in the Midwest tourney. Emporia (Kan.) and South Dakota State have also been mentioned as possible entrants.

The Plainsmen, boasting a 17-3 season record after Tuesday's 108-83 romp past Omaha University, tackle Tri-State Conference leader Midland at Fremont Saturday night.

Devaney Named Shrine Assistant

San Francisco (AP) — John McKay of Southern California and Pete Elliott of Illinois will coach the West and East teams respectively in the 40th Shrine football game Jan. 2.

Bob Devaney of 1963 Big Eight champion Nebraska and Hank Foldberg from Texas A&G will assist McKay.

—DISTRICT PREVIEW—

Knights Given Slim Nod Over High-Scoring Bolts

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

Pius X, which boasts the top scoring attack in the city, engages its first Lincoln opponent Friday night. The Thunderbolts tangle with Southeast in a preview of their district tourney meeting March 5.

The Thunderbolts are sailing along with an 81.9 offensive mark but at the same time, their defensive mark of 65.6 is the highest in the city.

Southeast, which has a 5-7 mark, has a 63.8 offensive mark and a 61.8 defensive mark.

The two clubs are similar in many respects. Both have three players with scoring marks in the double figures.

Chris Wickham, Dayle Churchill and Mike Bohaty are the Pius X leaders while Steve Bock, Randy Markel and Doug Dworak set the scoring pace for the Knights.

Both have rangy front lines. The Thunderbolts have Churchill (6-4), Bob Chaves (6-4), Jim Mestl (6-3) and Bohaty (6-1) to choose from up front.

Southeast can counter with Bock (6-3), Markel (6-3), and Bob Trotter (6-3) or Ron Burgess (6-4).

The weekend forecast:

FRIDAY

Pius X v. Southeast at Pershing Auditorium — Thunderbolts make debut in city play. Knights slim choice this time.

Beatrice v. Northeast at Johnson Gym—Rockets will need top effort to stop Orangemen, but should be ready.

Minden at University High — A chance for a surprise, but it looks like the Whippets are too tough.

Lincoln High at Hastings—Links have enough firepower to get this one.

SATURDAY

Northeast at Fremont — Rockets should go into orbit.

Southeast at Fairbury — Knights will solve the Fairbury slowdown effort.

University High at David City—Tutors the pick in a close battle.

Vossler, Baxter Meet Leaders

. . . TUCSON OPEN PLAGUED BY FROZEN GREENS

Tucson, Ariz. (AP) — Ernie Vossler of Oklahoma City and Rex Baxter of Amarillo, Tex., deadlocked for the first round lead in the $30,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament Thursday with six-under-par 66s.

The Texan finished just as darkness called a halt to play.

They carded their identical scores under far different conditions.

Vossler took the lead early in warm sunshine, while Baxter just made it in the chill of the evening.

Frozen greens delayed the start of the tournament one hour in the morning over the 49er Country Club course and a dozen golfers weren't able to finish ahead of darkness.

The 27-year-old Baxter was in the last threesome to finish. He carded three birdies and an eagle with a 20-foot putt on 518-yard seventh hole which he played as his No. 16.

Defending champion Don January was among those not getting in.

When the flares went up signifying suspension of play, January was reported one stroke under par through 17 holes.

Co-favorite Gary Player of South Africa completed his round in 72 in the threesome with Baxter.

Finishing one stroke back at 67 were Al Geiberger of Carlton Oaks, Calif., Chuck Courtney of San Diego, Calif., and Don Massengale of Jacksboro, Tex.

Most of the big name golfers skipped the Tucson event, leaving it wide open.

St. Paul, Gibbon Pass Meet Semifinal Exams

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

Grand Island — St. Paul and Gibbon rode the strong individual performances of rangy centers to the finals of the Louplatte Tournament coming up Friday night. St. Paul slipped past Burwell, 51-46, and Gibbon outscored Grand Island Central Catholic, 90-78 in semifinal tests Thursday night.

The St. Paul, which finished on top in the regular season standings, got 24 points and 23 rebounds from 6-6 junior from Gerald Schenck as it advanced to the finals.

Gibbon's high scoring attack was sparked by 6-7 senior Kurt Lauer who dumped in 42 points. It gives him a two-game tourney total of 90.

Schenck got good balanced scoring from his mates and kept the Wildcats in command with his defensive rebounding. St. Paul jumped to an early lead and fought off Burwell's late bid which saw the Longhorns go ahead at 40-39.

Lauer had 21 points in each half and had his biggest quarter in the third period when he scored 17. It helped Gibbon to a 70-49 margin at the end of the third period, but the host school rallied with a 29-point fourth quarter and cut the margin to 76-70 before Gibbon put the game out of reach.

Giving Lauer plenty of offensive help were Rich Robinson and Don Keiper, the other two returning regulars from last season's Class C runners-up. Robinson had 24 and Keiper 20 as the three vets accounted for all but four points.

Lauer connected on 19 of 31 attempts from the field.

Omahan To Fight England's Walker

London (UPI) — Boxing promoter Mike Barrett announced Thursday he has signed heavyweight Bill Nielsen of Omaha to meet Billy Walker of England in a 10-round bout at the Royal Albert Hall on March 10.

Walker, who recently won on a disqualification over Joe Bygraves of Jamaica, had declined a return bout.

Nielsen beat Bygraves in six rounds in Stockholm last year, and lost by a hotly disputed fourth round knockout to Brian London at Newcastle last December.

Contenders Swap Punches Via TV

. . . CLAY 'PREDICTS EIGHT'

New York (AP)—Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston swapped insults Thursday in an unusual news conference carried by closed circuit television from their Miami Beach training camps to a laboratory on Long Island.

Clay boxed one fast round, concentrating on moving backward. Liston pummeled the heavy bag for three minutes. Then they settled back for questions at their separate camps for newsmen located some 1,500 miles away.

"I'm going to upset the whole world," said Clay who is known as the Louisville Lip and with good reason.

"I'm predicting eight to prove I'm great," he rhymed. "If he whups me, I'm leaving the country. I'm bigger than he is. I'll be about 221 pounds. This is not going to be a giant fighting any Floyd Patterson."

Sonny's Turn

After listening to Clay promise again that, if he loses, he will crawl across the ring on his hands and knees and kiss Liston's shoes, the cameras switched to Liston, located several blocks north of Clay's camp.

Sonny sat at ringside at the Surfside Auditorium with a white towel over his head and beats of sweat standing on his face. His eyes never blinked.

"He'll still be talking on the way down," said the world heavyweight champion. "I want to keep up that one-round knockout record as long as I can. All I have to do is corner him and clobber him.

"How long will it last? It's just a matter of time. They tell me they use to have round rings, like a cup. Now they have four corners. He is going to land in one of those corners."

Muslim?

Clay was asked about the reports that he was a member of the Muslims, a Negro supremacy group...

"I'm talking fight talk," he replied. "I have no answer for that kind of question. I want two whole hours on television to tell my whole story after the fight. If I am bad and done wrong, I'm ready to go to jail. I'm tending my own business."

At the end of the interview, Clay and Liston engaged in a spirited long distance exchange that may have lasted longer than the fight will.

Like This

It went something like this:

Liston: "Would he want to fight me winner take all?"

Clay: "I tell you what we'll do. Your backers take their cut and mine take theirs and I'll meet you at the front door."

Liston: "Listen, Cassius, I'm gonna give you half of mine if you show up."

Clay: "Listen to the king. I'm going to whup you. If I do will you crawl across the ring and kiss my feet?"

Liston: "I'm not going to be around that long waiting for you to come to . . . But if you last through the third round into the fourth I'll kiss your feet."

Clay: "Only one thing I hate—my man, Joe Louis, is with you. He belongs to me. Chump, you are going to embarrass Joe Joe Louis. I am the king. I'm the king."

End of news conference.

DAVIDSON UPSET BY INSPIRED FURMAN

Greenville, S. C. (AP) — An inspired Furman basketball team that had lost 13 of 21 previous games rose up to smash Davidson, the nation's No. 4 team 70-55 Thursday night.

The loss was the second in 21 starts for Davidson which went into the game needing a victory to clinch the Southern Conference regular season honors, but instead lost its second game in 10 league tests.

Blistering OT Scoring Pace Lifts Hastings

Kearney (AP) — Hastings College set a blistering pace in the overtime period Thursday night to whip Kearney 83-76 and stay on top in the Nebraska College Conference basketball race.

Ben Crawford, who had 15 field goals for the night, and Ed Lorentzen, who had 8, did the heavy firing for the Broncs in the extra period.

Kearney had tied the score at 72-72 with two seconds left when Bob Whitehouse hit a field goal.

The lead changed hands 15 times in the last 10 minutes of regular play.

Swimming Record Book Won't Have Much Value

. . . MAJOR REVISION FORESEEN SATURDAY

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

Just like last year's calendar, the current state high school swimming record book won't be of much value come Saturday night.

For Nebraska's improving high school swimmers are expected to undertake a major revision of the existing records in state meet competition at the Johnson Activities Building pool Friday and Saturday.

Eight of the 10 existing swim marks have been equalled or bettered by competitors this season.

But despite the attention centered around the anticipated record-breaking, the primary question being asked is "can Southeast win again?"

The Knights got their first swimming title in 1959, and haven't been out of the winner's circle since that time. John Reta's powerful squad seeks its sixth straight championship.

Southeast will face strong challenges from Omaha Central, Westside and Lincoln High—the 1-2-3 finishers in the Intercity League championships.

Two state record holders, Steve Coy and Gregg Wright, return to lead the Southeast bid. Coy holds the mark in the 200-yd. freestyle and Wright in the 100-yd. backstroke. Both have improved on their marks this season.

Others in the record-breaking class for the Knights are breaststroker J. D. Ayres, butterfly ace Craig Dennis, and the medley relay team.

Central, the 1963 runnerup, is led by Ken Glasser, who holds state marks in the individual medley and breaststroke. The Eagles also have a fine butterfly entry in Dennis Tibbets and a strong supporting cast.

Westside's top performers are distance freestyle whiz Tom Curran and backstroker Hap Patz.

Lincoln High's strength lies in the freestyle races with Rich Gordon and Bob Stern capable of winning performances. They were the only Links able to post wins against Southeast in last week's city meet.

Friday's program is light with the 400-yd. freestyle prelims the only swimming event on the program which begins at 3:30 p.m.

Last year's top three divers—Steve Sorenson of Westside, Dan Murphy of Creighton Prep and Rick Silverman of Southeast—meet again at 4 p.m. in their preliminary and semifinal rounds.

Saturday's card calls for swimming prelims at 9:30 a.m. and the finals at 3 p.m.

The state marks under fire:

50-yd. freestyle—:23.2, John oMreland, Southeast, 1963.
100-yd. freestyle—:52.2, John Steele, Creighton Prep, 1963.
200-yd. freestyle—1:58.0, Steve Coy, Southeast, 1963.
400-yd. freestyle—4:21.7, Tom Nickerson, Southeast, 1962.
100-yd. backstroke—1:01.4, Gregg Wright, Southeast, 1963.
100-yd. butterfly—:57.9, Bill Bowles, Lincoln High, 1960.
100-yd. breaststroke—1:04.5, Ken Glasser, Central, 1963.
200-yd. individual medley—2:11.7, Glasser, Central, 1963.
200-yd. medley relay—1:49.5, Southeast (Dave Frank, Charles Flansburg, Dennis Merry, John Moreland), 1961.
200-yd. freestyle relay—1:33.4, Southeast (John Moreland, Dale Parker, Ken Miller, Dennis Hudson), 1963.

A VALENTINE FOR CASEY

New York Mets manager Casey Stengel is framed with four-year-old Vicki Rohrbaug of St. Petersburg, Fla., after Vicki, representing the city, presented Casey with this floral Thursday. The Mets, getting an early start in the league, have their spring training base in operation.

KC Officials Hand Talks Back To AL

Kansas City (AP)— Kansas City officials, apparently hopelessly deadlocked with owner Charles O. Finley of the Athletics in negotiations for a stadium lease, tossed the ball Thursday to President Joe Cronin and the other club owners in the American League.

The seventh in a series of conferences between Finley and city officials over the lease ended Wednesday night with no settlement in sight.

Finley, who has sought to move the baseball club to Louisville and Oakland, Calif., insisted he would not consider anything longer than a two-year contract with Kansas City. The city said it would consider nothing shorter than four years.

Meanwhile, Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., proposed that Senate investigators subpoena Finley along with financial records relating to his club. Long is a member of the Senate antitrust and monopoly investigating subcommittee said Thursday it has received no answer to its invitations to Finley to testify at a public hearing next Tuesday.

Long said he and other Missouri and Kansas lawmakers are ready to "use every means at our command" to keep American League baseball in Kansas City.

"This fellow looks more and more to me like he considers baseball to be a cold-blooded business," Long said. "He appears not to be concerned with the sporting part of the game or the fans."

The American League already has fixed Saturday midnight as a deadline to reach an agreement with the city on the lease or face possible expulsion from baseball and loss of his franchise. Finley has threatened court action if his control of the club is challenged.

Mayor Ilus W. Davis and other Kansas City officials sent a long telegram to Cronin Thursday reviewing the latest deadlock.

Rocket Wrestlers Given District Nod

. . . FIVE NORTHEAST GRAPPLERS TOP-SEEDED

Hastings and Grand Island, 1-2 finishers in last week's Big Ten championships, join Lincoln's four wrestling schools in district tourney competition at Southeast Friday and Saturday.

A spirited team race is expected as the wrestlers battle for the two state meet berths to be given in each weight class.

Northeast, which has a 7-1 dual meet record, ranks as the team favorite. Five of the Rocket wrestlers were top seeded in their weight class.

The Northeast favorites are Russell Blank (127), Tim Dovel (154), George Manske (165), Lester King (180) and Tom Harris (Hwt.).

Improving Lincoln High which finished third in the tough Intercity League meet, has top-seeded performers in Mike Disney (112), Ken Benton (133) and George Ward (145).

Grand Island, which had four individual champions in the Big Ten meet, has top-seeded entries in Don Schuyler (95) and Lyle Gearhart (120).

Hastings' top entry is Bob Bauer, unbeaten 138-pounder who was third in that class in last year's state meet.

Southeast gets the top seed in the 103-pound class with Larry Tepley.

FOUR OUT OF FIVE OK NEBRASKA'S PRICE HIKE

By BILL KETTER
United Press International

"I think most people would pay as much as $10 to see them play like they did last season," Henry Trysla of South Sioux City, Neb., said Thursday.

He was referring, of course, to the recent decision by the University of Nebraska to hike the price of reserve seat tickets for football games by $1 to $5.

Editor of the Dakota County Star, a weekly newspaper, Trysla added:

"Most people don't seem to mind the extra $1. If they (Nebraska) continue to win, $5 won't be bad at all."

His comment was typical of that received by telephone interviewers with five weekly newspaper editors in all corners of the state. Only one opined the price hike would result in some disgruntled fans.

Mrs. Jennie Cox of the Arapahoe Public Mirror said Furnas County residents "who are real Cornhusker fans will attend the games regardless of price.

"I don't think it will make much difference in this day and age. People expect to pay more for things they enjoy."

But Bob Morris of the Wymore Arbor State said he feels some fans will squawk next fall "when it comes to paying for the tickets." He added, however, that their displeasure will probably disappear "after they adjust to the new price."

Morris said he thinks the university picked "an opportune time" to raise ticket prices.

Nebraska finished regular season play last year with a 9-1 record, then went on to win the annual Orange Bowl grid contest as Big Eight Conference champion.

"Everything goes up," Bill Greenlee, Jr., Oshkosh, commented. "I think the fans realize this." He said he hasn't heard anyone complaining yet, adding:

"I don't think you will hear much complaining what with the type of football being played by the university."

Greenlee is editor of the Garden County News.

Alton Wilhelms of the Stromsburg Headlight said most people in his region "agree this is the time to do it." He said a few don't like the idea of paying an extra buck to watch their beloved Cornhuskers "but I'm sure they won't quit going to the games."

Wilhelms said "no one likes to pay more for something they can't do without."

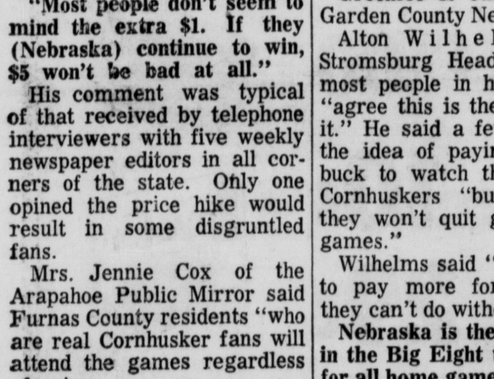

Nebraska is the first school in the Big Eight to charge $5 for all home games.

Oklahoma has charged that figure on certain games and so have Kansas and Missouri for their traditional season finale.

Loup, Platte Power Directors Air Differences Before Senators

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The directors of the Loup River Public Power District and Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District Thursday laid their differences before the Legislative Council's power study committee.

It turned out to be quite a pile.

Loup and Platte operate the Nebraska Public Power System, the state's major wholesale electric supplier.

Loup directors (five of the seven were on hand) told the lawmakers that they favor separation of the NPPS partnership, but retention of the integrated grid transmission system.

The nine Platte directors said they favor continuance of the NPPS partnership with one change — legislation spreading representation on the two boards to cover the districts' service areas.

Serves 75 Counties

Loup's board is elected from one county; Platte's board represents four counties. NPPS serves 75 counties.

Platte President Lloyd Kain of Lexington said his board opposes the Loup separation proposal.

"If we can't run it (the transmission system) as partners, we surely can't run it on a contractual basis," he said.

Kain said he would have "no objection" to a complete merger of the two districts.

Platte Director Homer Loutzenheiser of Gothenburg said the proposal to spread representation on the boards could be "the first step toward ultimate consolidation."

Opposes Merger

Loup Director Laird Loomis of Columbus, acting as spokesman for his board, said he would "very definitely oppose" a merger of the two districts.

If the NPPS partnership were separated, he said, "we would probably want to expand our board of directors some," that is, beyond Platte County.

But Loup Director John C. Byrnes of Columbus pointed out, "we need to separate first before we spread the board."

Other issues on which the two boards disagreed:

—Loup wants to sell the NPPS Kramer generating plant at Bellevue because of "excessive transmission costs." Platte opposes the sale of "our second best plant," and contends that such a transaction would also require the approval of Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District, a former NPPS partner.

—Loup has purchased and prepared a tract of land near Columbus "which is designed and ready for a new steam plant" and available for industrial development. Platte considers Loup's unilateral action "unreasonable," and wants any new plant located at the center of load growth, possibly Grand Island.

—Loup developed Lake North at Columbus for power peaking protection and recreation facilities. Platte considers Loup's unilateral action "unreasonable," and questions the lake's feasibility for power use.

—Loup directors say NPPS bonds can be refinanced upon separation "at a savings" which they estimate to be one-eighth to one-fourth of one per cent on bonds other than 2% Rural Electrification Administration loans; Platte directors say refinancing "would increase costs."

—Platte wants to construct a new 115-KV transmission line from North Platte to McCook; Loup's board opposes the proposal.

Primary Concern

Loomis said that "water rights on the Loup are our (the board's) primary concern. We do not feel that irrigation (in the Platte Valley) is the concern of the eastern part of the state."

"We want to keep control of the Loup Valley," Loup Director Zack Howell of Columbus declared.

Kain admitted that public power does subsidize irrigation, but he noted that the subsidy is applied to pump irrigation across the state, not to ditch irrigation which is paying its way.

"We wouldn't have public power without irrigation," Kain declared. "We want it to contribute to our state."

The problem in the NPPS, he said, is that "the stubbornness of a couple of people could ruin the whole damn thing."

Met Separately

The two boards met separately with the legislative committee.

Directors of Consumers Public Power District will confer with the lawmakers Friday at 9:30 a.m.

94-Year-Old Acquires His Own 1,000 Acres

Falls City (AP)—"I made it," Louis Fiedler said. "And I done it all myself."

Less than a month away from his 95th birthday, Fiedler has achieved the ambition of a lifetime: to own 1,000 acres of land.

Fiedler

He did it by paying $42,020 for 137½ acres at an auction Tuesday. Determinedly he pushed the bidding to $295 an acre to acquire one tract.

"But land's getting pretty high," he mused.

Fiedler, who will be 95 March 4, lives with his wife on a 720 acre farm near this eastern Nebraska community. He has rented the rest of his land.

Who runs the big farming operation?

"I have the whole job," he said. "And its getting kind of top-heavy."

The Fiedler farm is one his father homesteaded 100 years ago. He bought his first tract in 1907 for $156 an acre. Since then, he recalls, he's bought a farm every 15 years or so. About the time he had 500 or 600 acres, he knew he wanted to own 1,000 acres before he died.

Fiedler chuckled through his white beard: "My memory isn't so good any more but I think I have 50 or 60 more than the thousand acres.

"I'd judge it's all worth pretty much the same as that I bought the other day."

That would be somewhat more than a quarter of a million dollars.

Governor Wants Expanded State Vocational Setup

Gov. Frank Morrison said Thursday he will urge an expansion of Nebraska's technical vocational training program.

The governor said he planned to discuss the matter soon with State Education Commissioner Dr. Floyd Miller, Cecil Stanley, director of vocational training for the State Department of Education, and State Resources Chief David Osterhout.

Morrison said the state has to step up its vocational technical training or else lose opportunities to attract industries. He noted most industries want to locate where there is a supply of trained workers.

Morrison said he understands Nebraska lost one industry to Alabama recently "because they had 26 vocational training schools and we have one." The only state training school is at Milford.

City And County Building Space Needs Outlined

The City Council and County Board jointly listened to an architect's report on city and county space requirements during an informal meeting Thursday.

Public disclosure of the report was withheld pending presentation to a special citizens committee studying city and county cooperation of functions in a City-County Building.

The committee, headed by Robert C. Guenzel, is expected to receive the report within a week.

Council and board spokesmen said this action was taken in courtesy to the committee, which had requested the office survey be made.

It was made by Clark & Enersen Olsson Burroughs & Thomsen, Lincoln architects, engineers and planners.

Stock Market's Course Uneven

New York (AP) — The stock market pursued an uneven course Thursday as the excitement over American Telephone and its big rights issue subsided. Trading was fairly active.

AT&T common was still traded heavily but was "ex" its rights and its final quotation was off 3/8 at 145¾. Its 84,700-share turnover made "Telephone" second most active stock.

The rights to buy one share of AT&T common at $100 for every 20 shares held closed unchanged at 2⅜. The total rights traded were 931,000 compared with 3,375,900 Wednesday.

Chrysler went to the top of the most-active list, losing ⅜ at 41¾ on 240,000 shares. The company announced record earnings, pretty much as expected, but some Wall Streeters were reported disappointed that the directors had not taken additional dividend action.

The Dow Jones industrial average dipped .40 to 794.42.

The Associated Press Average of 60 stocks took a minor loss of .2 at 294.5 with industrials off .1, rails up .2, to a new high for 1963-64 and utilities off .5.

Among 1,325 issues traded, losers outnumbered gainers by 528 to 505. Highs for 1963-64 totaled 41 and lows 13.

Volume was 4.83 million compared with 4.64 million shares Wednesday.

Among the 15 most active stocks, gainers and losers were even at 7 each and Lehigh Valley Industries was unchanged at 1⅜.

National Air Lines was sold heavily and fell 1⅞ in fear that the line might cease operations in the vent of a strike.

Helene Curtis continued strong, rising 1¼.

Eastman Kodak rose 1⅞, Sears Roebuck 1⅜ and Texaco ½.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed.

Wheat And Rye Are Stronger In Fairly Busy Mart

Chicago (AP) — Grain futures prices ranged from strong on wheat and rye to weak on other commodities Thursday in fairly active transactions on the Board of Trade.

Old crop wheat advanced around two cents a bushel and the new crop months small fractions. Rye closed a cent higher at the extreme and soybeans down about two cents on all old crop deliveries. The feed grains were easier.

Brokers said much of the support for nearby wheat appeared to have been related to the government's action in granting a waiver on use of U.S. glaf vessels for movement of grain to Russia.

At the close wheat was ⅜-2¼ cents a bushel higher, March $2.22⅜-½; soybeans 1-2¼ lower, March $2.65⅜-¼; corn 1⅛-⅜ lower, March $.17½-⅜; oats ¼-¾ lower, March 65½ cents; rye ½-1 cent higher, March $1.44.

Nearly $2.5 Million Budget Approved For Union College

A budget of nearly $2.5 million was voted for all departments of Union College during a meeting of the college's constituency and board.

In other action, College View Academy and Helen Hyatt Elementary School were united under a single board of control. This plan, effective July 1, places a single principal over both units and assistant principals in both the elementary and secondary units.

Another phase of the unification is a new plan calling for six elementary, three junior high, and three high school levels, replacing eight elementary and four high school levels.

Training Lab

The combined schools serve the college as a teacher-training laboratory, in addition to serving the community's educational needs.

On the board are eight representatives of the college, sixteen members of Lincoln's four Adventist churches, two Nebraska Conference and Central Union Conference Educational secretaries, and the principal.

Full board approval was given for construction on stages B and C of the College View Academy, to begin this summer. Stage B will provide gymnasium and music facilities. A junior high school and vocational unit will be included in stage C.

OK to Begin

Authorization for architects to begin plans for the new Jorgenson Science Hall addition was granted by the board. Plans are to be submitted to the executive committee at its next meeting.

Provision was made for completion of the basement and third and fourth stories of the Rees Hall Addition for the 1964 fall term.

This will provide housing for 372 women, and those now residing in the college courts will be able to move into the dormitory. The courts are tentatively planned to be used for the men next year.

A faculty retreat was tentatively voted to take place just prior to the opening of the school. It will be held in Okoboji, Iowa, and will allow the faculty to lay fundamental plans for the new term.

SEN. HRUSKA

Congress Undergoing Severest Siege—Hruska

The U.S. Congress today "is undergoing one of its severest sieges" from those who would destroy or diminish its power, Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., said Thursday.

"It would be foolhardy to profess that the Congress has no imperfections or could not benefit from any reforms," he declared in a speech at a University of Nebraska student convocation.

"But not all proposals which sail under the flag of reform serve that cause."

There are those who contend that the legislative machinery operates too slowly and ponderously, he said.

Sen. Hruska admitted that "to get a bill enacted requires time and runs many hazards. As one whose business it is to steer legislation over that course, I will testify that it is not easy."

But there is good reason for the procedures, he said.

"Bills tested by the cross-currents of public exposure and floor debate season in the process, and only those which demonstrate public value survive . . . .

"To downgrade the legislative process because of its deliberative character endangers our system of self-government."

Sen. Hruska said these two alternatives are currently being advanced:

1. That Congress turn over its law-making duties to the chief executive and exercise a veto power if there is disagreement with his decisions.

2. That Congress relinquish its independent role and ratify those well-considered recommendations which are regularly sent to Capitol Hill.

'People Determine Destiny'

Either alternative would cause the rule of law to become a thing of the past, Hruska said.

The U.S. system of government, "in theory and practice, has assured the people that it will be they who determine the destiny of their republic . . .

"Measured against the great movements of our history, the machinery has rarely failed."

Sen. Hruska also defended the U.S. court system.

"The rights of free speech and to petition one's elected representatives are the great weapons of liberty, but the manner in which they are used may spell the difference between democracy and mobocracy," he said.

"At the crossroads where our nation now stands, we may ask what price is paid for an impatience with progress that downgrades the legal procedures by which sure progress is won."

Blast Hits Atlas ICBM In Deep Silo

Roswell, N.M. (AP)— A $1.5 million dollar Atlas ICBM missile exploded and burned in an underground launch silo 32 miles east of here Thursday — the second such accident within a year.

There were no injuries the Air Force reported.

The 82½-foot missile was being brought to the surface in what appeared to be a practice alert. It exploded as it was about one-third way up.

Traffic was helted on nearby US.. 380.

Black smoke belched up around the sleek silver surface-to-surface missile and smaller explosions were heard inside the huge concrete silo.

The Air Force wouldn't say how many men were at the site or what kind of test was being conducted, only that more men than usual were at the site.

All personnel at the site were evacuated.

Last year an explosion and fire gutted a missile site north of Roswell, killing three Air Force personnel.

An Air Force spokesman said it would take several months to determine the cause of the blast and to clear the silo of rubbish and melted metal.

Hackbarth Sent To Boys School

Beatrice (AP) — Walter Hackbarth, 17, of Beatrice, was committed to the Boys Training School at Kearney Thursday after he entered a plea of no contest to a juvenile delinquency charge in connection with the fatal shooting of his brother.

The youth had been charged with manslaughter, but the charge was subsequently reduced.

He was arrested Dec. 7 in connection with a shooting incident in which his brother, Ronnie, 16, was fatally wounded. Walter said in court the shooting was accidental.

Johnson's Executive Order Attacks Age Discrimination

Washington (AP) — President Johnson declared Thursday by executive order a policy against discrimination in employment because of age.

The President not only ordered that there be no discrimination against older people for employment and promotion in federal service, but also said the federal government can hasten the acceptance of this principle in all sectors of the economy, private and public.

The order goes beyond the government itself to direct that contractors and subcontractors working on federal projects not discriminate because of age as a general rule. Exceptions, Johnson said, should be tied to a bonafide job qualification, retirement plan or legal requirement.

The order carries out a recommendation of a presidential council on aging which the White House released last weekend.

Johnson said that "older workers are an indispensible source which our nation can ill afford to lose."

. . . and yet, Continental for 1964 incorporates a substantial number of refinements. One example: slide inside and stretch out; you'll find considerably more spaciousness, made possible by an increase in overall length. The trim, tailored look, however, remains the same. We'll be more than pleased to point out still other changes that have been made for your comfort and satisfaction. NEVER BEFORE have we been able to offer such a fine selection of '60 thru '63 Continentals which are new Continental trade-ins. See these today, they can be purchased at tremendous savings.
